Liberals Unveil Today

OTTAWA (CP) — A program to accelerate Canada's economic growth will be spelled out today as the new Liberal government meets the 26th Parliament for the first time.

Worried Says Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government is very concerned with the possibility of deterioration of the situation in Haiti where there is a large number of Canadian missionaries, Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday.

He said a cabinet meeting today received a report on the situation.

He recalled the Canadian government has called attention of Canadians on the island to the possible dangers.

Duvalier Stays In Haiti

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — President Francois Duvalier gathered a score of U.S. correspondents in his ornate white palace Wednesday and told them emphatically: "Haiti will continue under my administration." (See also Page 3.)

As followers of the 56-year-old strongman set up a din of sirens, horns and bugles outside, Duvalier appealed for better relations with the United States. "CERTAIN MEN"

He spoke acerbically of "shortcomings of certain men" in the United States "who should have directed their efforts toward understanding Haiti and its people."

The appearance of the grey-haired Duvalier surrounded by his cabinet ministers seemed intended to dispel reports that he was getting ready to flee in the climax of a crisis over his continued rule.

MARKED MAN

Duvalier's constitutional term of office expired Wednesday but he declared himself re-elected for six more years after a rigged election two years ago. His enemies have marked him for assassination.

In New York, the Haitian consulate cancelled four reservations on a Pan American World Airways flight to Paris that were believed intended for Duvalier and his family. The reservations had been made by telephone Sunday night by an unknown caller, and he presumably was to have reached New York by way of Curacao, in the Dutch West Indies.

DID THE SAME

Claiming Haiti is calm and peaceful, Duvalier accused the United States of "an ill-considered attempt to create panic" by its orders to U.S. dependents to get out of the country last week. Canada did the same. Duvalier said foreigners of all nationalities will "continue to enjoy... all guarantees for their safety under the protection of the law."

Duvalier denied any intention of heading his country toward the Communist bloc. He also said he is not receiving aid from any country in the Communist bloc.

An array of new economic legislation, plus efforts to build better relations between French and English Canada, are expected to highlight the work of the newly-elected Parliament opening in colorful ceremony.

The program of Prime Minister Pearson and his cabinet, in office as a minority government after six years of Conservative rule, will be outlined in the Speech from the Throne read by Chief Justice Robert Taschereau.

It will embody the main points of the Liberals' "90 days of decision," including a new

Crisis Meeting Set By Socred Chiefs

OTTAWA (CP) — The struggle within the ranks of the Social Credit party will be placed before a special national council meeting of the party, a reliable informant said Wednesday night.

A call for the special session has gone out from party leader Robert Thompson following the resignation of Dr. Guy Marcoux, MP for Quebec-Montmorency.

ISSUE OF SIX

Dr. Marcoux quit the party's Quebec wing last weekend and resigned as party whip in the Commons. He has said he considers the caucus of Social Credit MPs dealt too lightly with six MPs who signed a statement after the April 8 election promising support for a Liberal government.

The six men later repudiated the statement and Mr. Thompson has said three were disciplined by the caucus. Dr.

LONG SIESTA IN ORBIT

Halfway Reached Before Midnight

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Gordon Cooper completed his 13th orbit at 1:21 PDT today and started No. 14 apparently still sleeping after not being heard from for six hours. He was to be awakened from an eight-hour rest period while over Australia on the 15th orbit. He passed halfway in his 22-orbit flight at 11:15 p.m. PDT.

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP) — Astronaut Gordon Cooper shattered the U.S. record for cosmic travel Wednesday night, then calmly began an eight-hour rest period during which he hoped to sleep.

All earth-bound monitors were cautioned to remain silent while Cooper took his space siesta as he spun on and on in his marathon flight. If he overslept, an electronic alarm clock, triggered from the earth, was to wake him up.

The record period started during the ninth of Cooper's scheduled 22 orbits. It began over the southeast Pacific as Cooper's Faith 7 spacecraft was approaching the west coast of Chile.

Told to Go for 17

Five minutes later, heart beat and respiration signals received at a tracking post on Ascension Island in the South Atlantic indicated he had gone to sleep or was close to it.

Two orbits earlier, the seventh—which was a "go" or "no go" point in the astronomical log book—he was doing so well officials told him to try for at least 17 orbits.

Zippering along at nearly five miles a second more than 100 miles above the earth, Cooper broke the U.S. mark established by astronaut Walter Schirra, who did six orbits of the world last October.

Everything pointed to a remarkably successful flight. As he settled down for a night of rest, Cooper reported he was in excellent condition. Faith 7 was in equally good shape.

At the time, he had 80 per cent fuel remaining in the automatic capsule control system and 91 per cent in the manual system. The flight plan called for him to have at least 50 and 65 per cent, respectively, remaining in each tank for the critical re-entry maneuver during the 22nd orbit.

Cooper and ground trackers threw around such words as "excellent," "beautiful," and "perfect" in describing the flight.

The astronaut had many chores as he swept round and round the globe. Included was the releasing of a small satellite which followed him in orbit, sending out a flashing light that he observed in a space-distance judging test.

There was some doubt at first

Tension Builds In Mid-Pacific

ABOARD THE USS KEARSARGE (UPI) — The Kearsarge is sweating it out.

The prayers have been said, the preparations made and the plans scrutinized for the thousandth time today as this 17-year-old carrier moves slowly through the white-capped Pacific for her rendezvous with astronaut Gordon Cooper.

Each hour and each orbit brings Faith 7 closer to that predetermined spot southeast of Midway Island. There the one-ton spacecraft and the 40,000-ton carrier are due to meet—one now whipping through space at 17,500 miles an hour and the other idling through the seas at 10 knots.

On the surface it is "business as usual" aboard the Kearsarge except at the ship's stores, which report a fire sale in film and cameras as the just-paid crew loads up on photo equipment to record the historic event.

Today is no different from any other day aboard this ship except for the unmeasurable intangible called tension that has been steadily building up with each successful Cooper orbit.

Marines drill on the hangar deck, mechanics tinker with the helicopters and stored planes, the paint brushes are out and the routine duties are being performed that go on daily aboard a carrier.

For the next hours the tension will continue, building up until that final orbit when Faith 7 is due to come plummeting out of space and Task Force 130 takes on the job of finding Cooper and bringing him safely home.

Alabama Seeking Legal Showdown

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Alabama's segregationist governor said Wednesday he will file suit challenging President Kennedy's right to send federal troops into Birmingham to settle racial troubles.

"This military dictatorship must be nipped in the bud," said Governor George C. Wallace in a Montgomery press conference. He said the federal court suit was in preparation but would not say when or where it would be filed.

POSSIBLE USE

Kennedy has sent approximately 3,000 soldiers to two military bases in Alabama.

The legal showdown between Kennedy and Wallace shaped up while downtown Birmingham merchants expressed fears of an economic disaster for this industrial city of 340,000 because of a reported white boycott.

STAYING OUT

White shoppers obviously were staying out of downtown stores.

But Negroes returned to stores in increasing numbers and an integration leader indicated their long-standing boycott, protesting segregation, was ending as the result of a de-segregation agreement with businessmen.

Alabama's Supreme Court ruled that integration leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and 18 other Negro ministers could remain free pending review of their appeal of court contempt convictions. They were sentenced in circuit court here April 26 for defying an injunction against demonstrations.

'Barbaric'

"Barbaric and intolerable" racial situation exists in southern United States, African high school boys have been told in a speech by Lawrence Vass, U.S. consul-general in Nairobi, Kenya. See also Page 17. — (AP Photofax)

Poison Pens Busy In Canada

TORONTO (CP) — An organizer for a group raising funds for U.S. Negro integration leader Martin Luther King said Wednesday night the group has received a number of hate letters and telephone calls.

Milton Cadash, a lawyer and chairman of the social action committee of Holy Blossom Temple, said "hundreds" of the 400 letters received by the fund since it was started Saturday were of the poison pen variety.

One letter called "Negroes beasts and animals." The fund raisers, who include prominent Torontonians, were called "filthy, dirty drinking Communist."

'Pretty Casual Up There'

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP) — A log of astronaut Gordon Cooper's space flight:

3:50 a.m. EDT — Cooper awakened to begin the astronaut's big day.

6:33 a.m. — The astronaut climbed feet first into his Faith 7 spacecraft.

9:04 a.m. — Liftoff. Cooper was on his way toward space.

ORBIT 1

9:09 a.m. — Project Mercury officials announced the spacecraft had achieved orbit.

9:12 a.m. — "Great sport, isn't it?" said Walter Schirra on the ground. "Sure is," Cooper replied.

9:18 a.m. — Over the Canary Islands, a TV camera in the capsule transmitted first pictures of Cooper to the ground.

10:31 a.m. — Cooper told astronaut Gus Grissom at Guaymas, Mexico, the flight was "quite a thrill." He got go-ahead for the next six orbits.

ORBIT 2

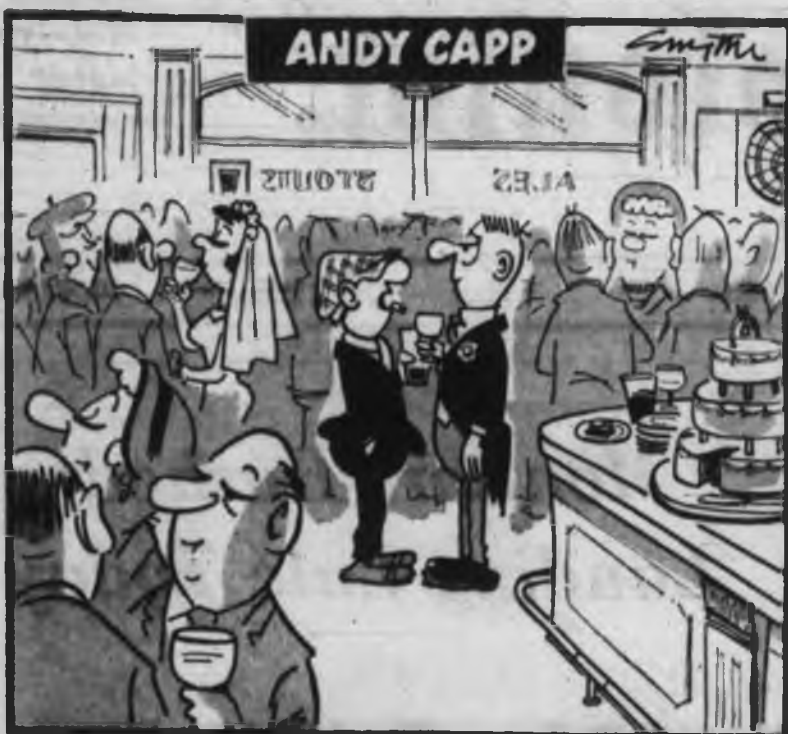

10:37 a.m. — Cooper checked readings quickly with Alan Shepard on the ground at Canaveral. "You son-of-a-gun," Shepard said. "We don't have anything to talk about." As more pictures came in, Shepard said, "You look pretty casual up there." Cooper replied, "Well, I am."

ORBIT 3

12:29 p.m. — Approaching Africa, Cooper released from his craft a 3.15-inch sphere with two brilliant flashing lights.

"No matter how well she treats you, always manage to look a little bit 'art'."

Cooper Takes Siesta

that this test was successful, but Cooper finally found the small satellite after an orbit. Everything went perfectly during the flight which, if it went the distance, would terminate with a landing southeast of Midway Island in the Pacific at 4:23 p.m. PDT today.

TWO DURATIONS

Depending on how you look at it, Cooper's orbital period was of two different durations. The time of an actual earth orbit was about 93.5 minutes. But measuring it in terms of the Keplerian orbit, it is 98.5 minutes. This is the time it takes the capsule to go from the low point in its orbit around the earth and back to the low point.

So splendidly were men and machinery behaving that Cooper, nestled in his day craft as it sped along at 17,544 miles an hour, soon took an unacknowledged nap.

And because Cooper on earth is the most matter-of-fact of all astronauts he quickly became the most matter-of-fact in space.

PRETTY CASUAL

The first American in space, Alan B. Shepard, speaking to Cooper from Cape Canaveral, "You seem pretty casual."

Cooper from space: "Well, I am."

But if the 36-year-old U.S. Air Force major was nonchalant, others took a more excited view. A note of exultation crept into the voices of those who were talking with Cooper. "Overjoyed" was one word used to tell Cooper the reaction of his technicians. In Houston, Tex., his wife and their two daughters had several television sets turned on. When blastoff time arrived, Mrs. Cooper is said to have gone into another room to watch it alone.

In Tecumseh, Okla., his mother, Mrs. Hattie Cooper, said: "Don't you know Gordon is thrilled."

ROCKETS STILLED

And his grandmother, Mrs. Orena Herd, rocked more and more slowly as the critical time approached. At blastoff the rocker was stilled; only a faint sob broke the silence.

President Kennedy, glued to a television set in his bedroom to see this tremendous event, said he was "very happy" at the success of the takeoff. Around the world the reaction seemed much the same: A lot of interest and hope for its success.

STARTLING CHANGE

Certainly this was a startling change from Tuesday when nearly everything seemed to go frustratingly wrong and the attempt had to be postponed to Wednesday.

The big day began as these days always do, with the astronaut routed out of bed at 3:59 a.m. EDT.

He had the usual breakfast, the usual last-minute instructions. There was only one change reported: While sweating it out

Tuesday, Cooper had lost a pound.

At 6:33 a.m., Cooper climbed out first into the space capsule Faith 7 and the tedious business of bolting him in began.

All went smoothly. The weather, which had been a constant worry here, co-operated beautifully. A bright sun.

A slight breeze. A calm sea. Only minor delays were encountered, just enough to give one a sinking feeling and heighten the tension.

At 9:04 a.m. the huge launching vehicle was fired.

The roar was deafening. Buildings shook.

Slowly, majestically, almost lazily, the giant missile rose straight into the air.

TEMPERATURE WORRY

Within five minutes Cooper was into orbit and on his way toward a record for U.S. astronauts.

About the only worrisome feature of Cooper's first orbit was the temperature within Faith 7; one thermometer—possibly faulty—had it at 118 degrees.

Everyone seemed bothered about this except Cooper.

One of the chief purposes of this flight is to pick up information on how man reacts in space, exposed to radiation and free from gravity. These must be known before Americans can set out on their most ambitious space project of the decade: A trip to the moon.

Experts Split On Lights In Daytime

Victoria traffic officials are divided in their opinions about driving with headlights on during daylight hours.

Commenting on a report that the Canadian Association of Optometrists has endorsed a suggestion that motorists drive with headlights on during daylight hours, George Lindsay, superintendent of motor vehicles said, "There is at present legislation for funeral processions. Is it going to defeat this?"

"A person's vision should be quite good enough in daylight hours to drive without lights on. Otherwise, they should not be on the road," he said.

But, he added, he has no real objection to the plan.

Conway Parrott, president of Vancouver Island Coach Lines, had nothing but praise for the suggestion.

"Our buses have been driving with lights on during daylight hours for two years, and during that time we have had no head-on collisions caused by other cars not seeing and recognizing a bus in sufficient time," he said.

"We are very pleased with the results, and I think it would be beneficial for all vehicles from a safety point of view," he said.

J. M. Leeming, secretary of the Victoria Branch of the B.C. Automobile Association, praised the plan.

"We have been recommending it for several years," he said.

"It makes a great deal of difference during the dawn and dusk periods," he said, "and also when it is hazy and there are shadows."

"It would be a great safety factor."

They Got Wrong Picture

LONDON (AP)—Gordon Cooper's space flight Wednesday was a dismal flop on European TV. Thousands of viewers missed seeing the blast-off.

But the U.S. space agency tried again Wednesday night, transmitting via the Relay I satellite film of the launching.

An NASA spokesman said "an error on the part of the broadcast company program-mers... resulted in the transmission of live TV monitors at Cape Canaveral which consisted of a hodgepodge of random pictures and sounds that was virtually meaningless."

department of industry, low-interest loans for municipal development, a fund to power industrial expansion, and an economic council to chart future economic goals.

Few surprises are expected as Chief Justice Taschereau, substituting for Governor-General Vanier who is recuperating from a mild heart attack, reads the throne speech document in the mid-afternoon ceremony in the Senate chamber.

SCANT FOUR SHORT

This will launch Parliament on a life of indefinite duration. The Liberals have 128 of the 265 Commons seats—a scant four members short of majority control.

The government's working strength will be reduced by one today with the election of Alan Macnaughton, 58-year-old member for Montreal Mount Royal, as Speaker of the Commons. The Speaker can vote only in the event of a tie.

FORMER WHIP

The Progressive Conservative opposition under John Diefenbaker has 95 members. The 24 Social Crediters elected April 8 have already lost one with the decision of their former whip, Dr. Guy Marcoux, to sit as an independent-Social Credit MP. The New Democratic Party is back with 17 members.

The new Parliament faces a busy two months of work before an expected mid-summer recess, returning in September to finish the work of the first session.

BUDGET SPEECH

Crammed into the opening period will be the key legislation the government wants to have passed urgently, plus Finance Minister Walter Gordon's budget speech expected about mid-June.

However, the session will get off to the traditional leisurely start. On Friday two newly-elected Liberal MPs, Pauline Jewett (Northumberland) and Auguste Choquette (Loblawville), will make speeches and present the traditional motion for approval of the throne speech.

NOTICE ST. LAWRENCE SEAWAY TOLLS

The 1963 Memorandum of Agreement between The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority and the Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation of the United States respecting the St. Lawrence Seaway Toll of Tolls provides that after five complete seasons of navigation have elapsed, and not later than July 1, 1964, a report shall be made to their respective Governments "as to the sufficiency of the authorized tolls to meet the statutory requirements".

A detailed analysis of the five seasons of navigation is required for the preparation of such a report, as well as an examination of various economic factors affecting the tolls structure, such as the growth, the competitive position of the different transportation modes and its impact on the various industries related to the Seaway.

For the purpose of assisting the Seaway entities in the course of the present review, all interested parties are invited to submit written statements dealing with the Toll of tolls, including the various charges such as on gross registered tonnage, bulk cargo, general cargo, ballast and domestic package freight. The statements should be prepared in two copies and forwarded to the undersigned not later than Tuesday, September 3, 1963.

Following the review of these statements and the study of the five seasons of navigation, public hearings will be held for the submission of formal briefs and oral presentations.

The Toll of Tolls, the annual statistical reports and the Annual Reports of the Authority for each year of operation may be obtained by interested parties by writing to the undersigned.

Liquid, Tablets Are Effective In Stemming Poison Ivy Rash

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: My 15-year-old son has only to go near poison ivy and he breaks out with it. Where can I buy pills to prevent the rash? He has been taking poison ivy extract.—Mrs. J. T.

Although I avoid trade names whenever possible, in this case I'll mention two with which I happen to be familiar. Toxicol, a liquid extract, and Aqua Ivy, which comes in tablet form, have been effective in my experience.

IN DRUGSTORES

These oral preparations are available in drug stores. Follow the directions carefully—and remember that for maximum effect in building up protection against ivy, one must start taking them early—about three months before contact is expected.

Alternatively, other extracts can be given by injection, but in that case you must rely on your doctor.

Your comment that your son has been taking poison ivy extract implies me to add a word of caution. If he has had either oral or injected extracts this spring, don't add any other types of medication without your doctor's approval. Too much can cause trouble.

HIGHLY SENSITIVE

Your son obviously is highly sensitive. He doesn't really break out just by being "near" ivy. The sticky juice of leaves or stems must be reaching him. For one thing, it may cling to the fur of animals, only to be rubbed off on him or on bushes which he may touch. Again, some people break out from smoke of fires in which ivy is burning—the smoke carries the poison.

Even with pre-season treatment, it is still wise for a person to beware the "leaves of three," because the protection is relative. It will combat some exposure but not always heavy contact.

If you live where ivy flourishes, destroy it with chemicals. Ammonium carbonate serves well for this purpose.

Dear Doctor: I recently bought my sister, with whom I live, a plastic bowl in which to feed her dog, figuring she should use it instead of one of our table dishes. I claim that feeding a pet from our dishes is very unsanitary and not in good taste. Am I right?—M. J.

In the matter of taste, yes. I think dogs should have their own feeding bowl. Besides, it's good training for a pet to eat from its own dish. As to the question of being unsanitary, I see no great danger. Tests have shown that human mouths harbor many more germs. At any rate, I think you chose a tactful way of getting the idea across.

Dominicans Silent on Haiti

War Imminent? Citizens in Capital Show No Realization of Threat

By JORGE ESTEBAN
(Copley News Service)

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic—If war between Haiti and the Dominican Republic is imminent, practically no one here seems to realize it.

In the coffee shops, restaurants and bars, there is talk of politics, of Communism, anti-Communism, of the Dominican economy, about unemployment. In short, of virtually every interesting topic. Except Haiti.

To hear about Haiti, one has to visit the air-conditioned salons of the National Palace, or the foreign embassies or those hotels where the international correspondents who came hunting a war and couldn't find one are lodged.

On the border that divides Hispaniola, as Christopher Columbus baptized this island, there is no evidence of hostility between the two governments.

BORDER CLOSED, BUT—
The border officially is closed and soldiers are in positions to keep people from crossing the international boundary. But the farmers of the region continue moving freely in both directions and soldiers on frontier patrols exchange greetings and cigarettes.

Haitians and Dominicans, nevertheless, have traditionally been enemies with the few exceptions that generally occur in border zones.

WATGHTERS RECALLED
Haiti dominated this country for 22 years the middle of the last century and, during that time, the Haitians are said to have killed more than 150,000 Dominicans.

On the other hand, the late Generalissimo Rafael Leonidas Trujillo in 1937 ordered the slaughter of some historians say, as many as 60,000 Haitians who were working in this country's sugar cane fields.

SPAIN IS CLOSER
Here in Santo Domingo, a history professor in a local college commented recently that "the Dominicans feel a closer relationship with the Spanish people, half a world away, than with the Haitians who live practically in the backyard of their homes."

Their language is different. Their customs are French and African. If there were a way to divide this island in two, we would have done so a long time ago.

A boy who could not have reached 12 years of age, peddling ice cream, had this comment on the Haitians: "Those beasts eat people."

There is a widespread popular belief, which may or may not be substantiated by something that happened a long time ago, that some Haitians are cannibals, like the savage African tribes from which they descended.

Dominican mothers, to scare their children who refuse their food, often tell them: "If you don't eat, the Haitian will get you."

DEROGATORY
In general, here, when the people talk of Haiti they do so in derogatory terms.

But to get anyone to speak of the Haitians and the current conflict, it is necessary to ask many questions.

There seems to be a collective sense of shame in having Haiti as a neighbor.

WONT CONCEDE CRISIS
Although it may sound unbelievable, while the Dominican army is on the alert and commissions from the Organization of American States are coming and going in their probe into the threat from Haiti, practically no one, except Dominican politicians, will concede that a crisis exists with the neighboring country.

In nine out of 10 cases, a Dominican asked about the current crisis, will answer: "Haiti? Haiti? What Haiti?"

Serious Clashes Seen on Tariffs

GENEVA (UPI)—Diplomats predicted serious trade clashes between the United States and European Common Market nations at tariff talks opening here today.

The two economic giants so far have failed to reach agreement on procedures for cutting tariffs designed to boost the free world's trade exchanges.

NO NEW PROPOSALS
U.S. chief delegate Christian A. Herter met Common Market foreign affairs chief Jean Rey Wednesday, but sources said Rey merely outlined the result of a recent Common Market ministers' meeting. He made no new compromise proposals.

Today's conference is taking place under the auspices of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade at Geneva's Palais des Nations. Forty-four nations are participating.

Both the U.S. and the European group want tariffs cut. But they disagree on methods. The U.S. wants an across-the-board cut of 50 per cent

Non-Toiling Russians Lose Luxury Houses

MOSCOW (UPI)—Three Russians have been deprived of luxurious country houses, because they were built with money "not earned by honest labor," the official news agency Tass says.

The most recent case involved secondhand dealer B. Kaplan of Gorki, who had a two-storey dacha and a salary of 70 rubles ($70.70) a month.

Physicist Nabbed With Spy Tools

SOUTHIEND (UPI)—The hollow-heeled shoes, a false-bottom cigarette case containing "hard" cigarettes used for coding, and a diary.

The announcement was a morale booster for British counter-espionage agents who have been criticized for recent cases in which secrets got to Moscow.

DETAILS EMERGE
First details of the case emerged when the government went into court to ask that Dr. Giuseppe Martelli, 39, be held for trial on charges he was preparing to break Britain's Official Secrets Act.

Prosecutor E. J. P. Cussen indicated Martelli had been making his preparations for two and a half years but had not yet had a chance to carry out his mission.

SPYING TOOLS
He said the government had found in Martelli's British home such spying tools as

A Sharp Reversal

THE OPTIMISTIC hopes held by a large and influential group of British economists and politicians that Commonwealth trade could be developed into a logical and workable alternative to the European Common Market for the United Kingdom have been brutally dashed by Canada's new trade minister, Mr. Mitchell Sharp.

In London this week to attend the opening of the Commonwealth trade conference, Mr. Sharp wasted no time in telling British newspapermen that the Liberal government did not think much of Mr. Selwyn Lloyd's proposal to set up a new Commonwealth Economic Development Council as a first step to expanding trade within the Commonwealth.

He made it clear to them that the Canadian government was more interested in following President Kennedy's plan for freer world trade than in considering any ideas for improving the Commonwealth market.

As the Pearson government has already dedicated itself to working toward this broader aim, Mr. Sharp saw the establishment of a Commonwealth council such as envisaged by his British colleagues as nothing more than "a distraction."

"That does not mean," he said, "that we should not take measures to stimulate Commonwealth trade. I do not think, however, that this should be of a character that will interfere with the attainment of the larger objective."

Having thus put our nation's second best customer squarely in her place by warning her that Canada would brook no Commonwealth trade deals which would hinder the carrying out of President Kennedy's plans, Mr. Sharp underlined his point by stating: "We are not going to the conference with substantial suggestions for Commonwealth trade."

Mr. Sharp's present attitude is a peculiar reversal of the one he and his Liberal companions-in-arms so piously adopted when they were castigating the Diefenbaker government for its British trade policies a few months ago. At that time they posed so successfully as the champions of bigger, better and freer Anglo-Canadian trading arrangements that they even had the Macmillan government cheering them.

However, the Whitehall huzzahs have now suddenly and understandably diminished to the point of silence.

Potential Barrier

SAANICH council may be taking short-sighted action in moving to rezone from commercial to light industrial category the area along Douglas between the Town 'n' Country shopping centre and the new Mayfair centre at the city limits.

It is not necessarily nor even probably the case that this stretch will quickly assume the unpleasant character that the word industry may connote. Light industrial development can be and often is these days inoffensive and even eye-pleasing at least initially. The convenience of the location near the junction of two highways for some light industrial uses moreover cannot be denied.

But in the far view, such a zone once established and especially after the inevitable deterioration had begun to set in could surely act as a barrier to the northward growth of the higher-class commercial development which the expanding population of the Saanich Peninsula would seem likely, in present circumstances, to invite.

In this respect it would be helpful if the provincial government could be definite about its plans for a second peninsula highway route, which according to recent hints and rumors may come nowhere near the area in question but lead into the city a mile or so to the east.

The location of the new main road in prospect and the types of traffic likely to be using the two routes are important considerations in making the correct zoning decision. Especially if there is any prospect of obtaining this information in the not-too-distant future Saanich council would seem better advised to take a second, slow look than act precipitately and perhaps find itself unable to retreat at a later date from an unwise decision.

Joining the Club

ANOTHER new member state has been admitted to the United Nations, and in whimsical mood one may note the anomaly it represents. Tiny Kuwait of the Persian Gulf is but half the size of Vancouver Island and has a population of only twice that of Greater Victoria, but with now has the same voting power in the world assembly as the whole of Canada, not even to mention the giants of the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R.

The contrast in this sense is startling and scarcely would be imagined when the UN club was formed 18 years ago.

In one respect however the Sheikhdom of Kuwait will be warmly welcomed by the UN secretariat. It is rich far beyond the measure of its size. It can pay its way, which is more than some of the major member states seem willing to do. In fact it has already picked up $1,000,000 of UN bonds, which would be no drawback to its bid for entry in the club itself.

For all its diminutive size therefore this tiny Arab state will help to buttress the affairs of the world assembly.

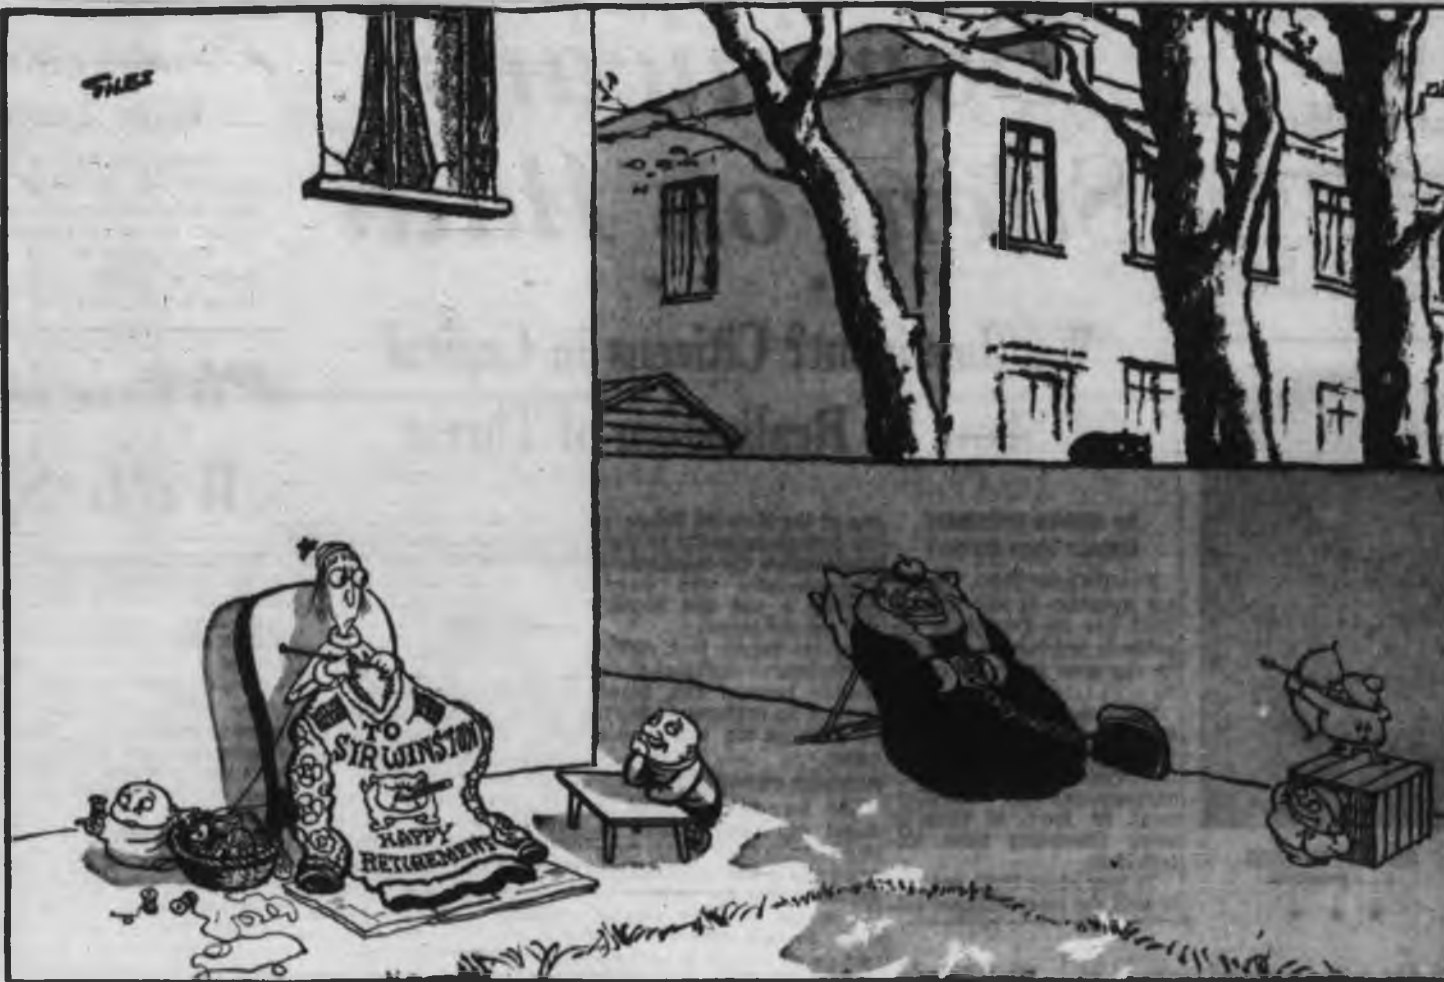

Financially these affairs are in bad shape. With any other kind of organization bankruptcy would have to be filed. By mid-summer it is expected there will be no money left to pay for its operations in the Congo and the Middle East, for example, and the UN secretary-general, U Thant, is threatening to resign if all the member nations don't pay their share.

Some of them lag far behind, with seeming indifference to the debts they owe. Forty-three countries are in arrears with their normal budget allotments, some of these for years on end. There are 54 defaulters who flatly refuse to pay a share of the UN field levies, including the Soviet bloc, France and Nationalist China. Even the stop-gap UN bond issue failed of full subscription.

Its newest member at least accepts the financial obligation of UN membership.

Kuwait has of course sought UN membership for its own protection, and with some reason. Its oil riches are eyed covetously by bigger Arab neighbors who have made no secret of their ambitions to absorb the sheikhdom. Under the UN mantle it may reasonably hope to be safe.

Its entry also underlines the thesis of self-determination so pertinent in the world today, although this credo is peculiarly set aside on occasion by major powers who take undue interest in the kind of governments which other nations choose to have.

"Bet he doesn't wear it."

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships, and scaling waxes...

By TOM TAYLOR

EVERY man has his day, as I'm sure both Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Pearson are thinking this morn as Parliament opens abet with different emotions.

I suppose in a sense each of us has his day throughout the years even if it never makes the headlines, some little moment of ecstasy or glory that shines us among our immediate fellows.

It was in the realm of sport I was manoeuvring these thoughts however as I noticed that Mr. Palmer, who shows you how to play golf in our pages, is taking a rest. He is not doing well of late, not as expected winning practically every tournament he enters.

You could say he is off form, and without malice his opponents doubtless hope he stays that way. He might, or comparatively so, for it is not in the cards that either sportsmen or politicians can succeed for ever.

As we have noted, they have their day.

Peculiarly, too, they often become the more popular the more they recede from the front lines.

Momentarily at least Jack Dempsey comes to mind, a pugilist, who never won affection until he ceased to be the champion.

Champions in any line of endeavor await only to be dethroned. It is after they've been dislodged that the nice things are said about them. There could be no sport at all, of course, as I have remarked more than once, if the same man or team always turned out to be the winner.

Individuals and clubs must feel the incentive of victory in their bones else they cease to compete.

And by the alchemy of the ruling fates, each has his or its day. The Canadiens, for instance, whose period of hockey supremacy faded these past two winters. Have made way for others. For a period, at any rate. And their day is more likely to come again than Mr. Palmer's, for he is himself and unlike a team unit cannot be replenished by others.

Although this passing comment is not to write him off the fairways yet awhile.

If I am to believe all I read on the sports pages and should I not?—a new day is dawning for English cricket, to jet-jump the hemispheres. The West Indians are playing there this summer and they have a galaxy of spirit that's enticing, so much so they are counted on to bring back the brighter kind of play that formerly characterized the country game.

Another kind of day has dawned as it is for the professionals, no longer socially inferior to the amateurs and now with them just "cricketers." The pros get their initials in the London Times as well as do the amateurs, so their accolade has arrived.

Although if they don't keep up to scratch their initials won't prevent them from having had their day too.

This is the way of human life, up today and down tomorrow, or if not exactly teetering every 24 hours, ebbing with the interplay of others. And nowhere more noticeable probably than in the strenuous realm of athletic endeavor.

Politics has its own ups and downs, of course, as last month made clear and as the new composition of the Commons well illustrates. And if the two chief figures have changed seats, it will be on the cards they may change again.

A man's day is never finally over, you see, until he gives them all up.

Days of Unpleasant Decisions

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonial Ottawa Bureau

WELL, here it is "Day 25" and only 35 more to go until those "blazing days of dynamic decision" run out, with Prime Minister Pearson's "Action Countdown" reaching the zero hour of "Day Sixty."

Today, May 16, with the new Parliament opening, should have been "Day One," with 59 still to go before tell-tale "Day Sixty."

Because only now, with Parliament back in business, can the real "action" actually start.

Previously, most of the "dynamic decision" was confined to appointments, all the way down the ranks from cabinet ministers to confidential messengers.

That Prime Minister Pearson got 24 days ahead of himself in counting down to "Day Sixty," he can charge against his own exuberant enthusiasm.

Usually a cool, even calculating character—well schooled in diplomacy where the No. 1 trick in the book is never to pin yourself down to anything—the prime minister in first, fine rapture on being sworn into office, glowed that this was "It," this, "Day One."

That was April 22.

He since publicly has regretted this political indiscretion.

And, as the days tick all too swiftly by, he will increasingly repent.

For now in the 35 days ahead before his own self-imposed "action" clock runs out, he must pack a lot of difficult and unpleasant decisions.

Most painful will be the dozens, even now in the final making, for the budget which Finance Minister Gordon has promised for June.

These, almost beyond question, will involve many of the "unpleasant measures," as he termed them, that the prime minister during the election campaign warned would be necessary to put the government and the nation on a financially sound basis.

While nothing, theoretically, is so secret in government affairs as a budget, every administration—this one included—for its own self-protection, somehow manages always to warn in advance of what is in the financial wind.

It's done by what the trade knows as "informed speculation," a politically polite term for "leak."

Nothing specific, of course becomes known even unofficially in advance, except that the shape of things to come financially is allowed to become vaguely apparent.

And for taxpayers, this time the prospects are bleak.

Finance Minister Gordon, perhaps as part of this process of "pre-conditioning" them for a tough budget, has proclaimed that Liberal financial policy is for an end to the succession of huge deficits that have colored the national accounts so deeply and darkly red these past six years, and a beginning, again, of balanced budgets.

But, aside from budget deficits, and they have run into an accumulated $3 billion odd, the old age pension fund and the unemployment insurance fund, both in deep financial trouble, will have to be bailed out.

So the "informed speculation," as it's termed, on the opening day of the new Parliament, is for such "unpleasant measures" as higher taxes in a rather financially chilling variety.

The guessperts are focussing in on increased personal income tax, and the imposition of sales or special excise taxes on such consumer services as electricity, long distance telephone calls and water.

This would scarcely break

Arbitrary

There is certainly some justification for dissatisfaction with this year's jury show. Last year, we had an excellent exhibition, with much variety and interest.

Has the standard of work submitted this year fallen so utterly that of 260 pictures only 36 were worthy of hanging? I don't think so, although an inspection of all the entries left me with the impression that the general quality was poor.

But work by certain painters and at least one sculptor of real standing was rejected and this in spite of real scarcity of good material.

One therefore is forced to conclude that the judgment of the selection committee was arbitrary, to say the least.

To avoid a repetition... it would seem that a jury in future should be invited clearly to select not less than a certain number of works. That some pictures hung might not be of professional standard, and that nowadays is a dubious term, would be of no great consequence in an exhibition limited to residents of this island.

I was privileged to attend a banquet at the Empress Hotel for the graduation of 26 men from Dale Carnegie Class No. 3, William Head Penal Institution.

We sat with two of the young men, one of them with his mother seated beside him; she silently wept while her son gave tribute to the wonderful mother she was and said he had learned his lesson.

I would like to pay tribute here to Mr. Warwick Angus and his assistant, Mr. Len Parkin, for the time they have given up voluntarily to this work for the past 10 years in the New Westminster and William Head institutions.

Nuclear Fallout On Canada World's Heaviest

By PETER WORTHINGTON

Apart from whatever other international distinctions Canadians may have, we are acknowledged as living in the "hottest area on earth" so far as nuclear fallout is concerned.

And 1963 is expected to be a record radioactive year for Canada, as the fruits of last year's nuclear tests in Russia descend from the stratosphere and troposphere and are showered over the land in the form of spring rains.

For various meteorological reasons springtime is fallout season, as well as the growing season. That is of special concern for Canadians who must live with this 20th century hazard.

Will the fallout on Canada this year reach dangerous levels? Have Canadians—especially those living on the "hot" zones of this hottest of all nations—cause for alarm?

"There is great danger," say some scientists, like Nobel Prize winner Dr. Linus Pauling who predicts the Russian tests alone will result in "tens of thousands" of cancer deaths and "grossly defective" births.

"No, it is largely a false scare," think other experts. Like Dr. Lauriston Taylor, chief of Radiation physics with the U.S. National Bureau of Standards.

"We don't know... it's impossible to judge the amount of fallout we'll get from the tests," say others, like Dr. P. M. Bird, of the Radiation Protection Division in Ottawa.

If you find this mish-mash of conflicting expert opinion confusing, you've got plenty of company; the only people who don't seem bemused with doubts and fears are those in Russia, the United States and France who are in charge of the actual testing—and they may be wrong!

If the people of the world are someday to suffer from nuclear tests, Canadians will probably be first.

Of all the lethal radioactive elements in fallout, strontium-90 is painted as the villain that's most persistent and dangerous.

Dr. Bird cautiously warns: "From our previous experience we expect a rise in strontium-90 levels this year; but we can't predict how high it will go." However, he doesn't think it will come anywhere near a life-endangering level. If there's one thing all scientists agree on it's that there is no such thing as "good" radiation. All radiation does some damage to living organisms, even if it's too infinitesimal to measure and consists merely of "aging" the cells slightly.

Why is strontium-90 more deadly than other elements of fallout debris—such as iodine-131, cesium-137, carbon-14, strontium-89 and barium-140? The strontium-90 that is showered on the land during springtime infects growing plants and to some extent the animals that eat those plants. It is therefore especially prevalent in milk.

Strontium has a long life; whereas other deadly elements like iodine-131 have a short life; iodine-131 has an eight-day half-life expectancy, strontium has 28 years.

Strontium collects in the bone marrow and can cause bone cancer and leukemia (the amount is still undetermined and hotly debated by scientists). Because of its long life strontium is virtually impossible to eliminate from the body.

Iodine-131, on the other hand, tends to collect in the thyroid and though it can cause cancer, it can also be eliminated more easily by biological means. Cesium-137, too, collects in the muscle and tissue and can be eliminated through normal cell and tissue turnover.

It's been argued that Canada should map its fallout hot spots and perhaps relocate meteorological testing stations to these areas. More work should be done on developing counter-measures. It's felt, especially since Canada's geographic position makes us so vulnerable.

There is no panic in Ottawa, though it's realized that the results of the radiation we are experiencing today may appear in our descendants one to 50 generations from now.

Catholic Theologian Stirs Controversy

By ATTICUS from London

Considerable impact was made in Cambridge by a lecture given at the divinity school by Dr. Hans Kung, a young German-Swiss priest. One university cleric tells me that this must have been the first time since the Reformation that a lecture on the nature of the church, given by a Roman Catholic, has been warmly applauded by Protestants and Catholics alike.

Dr. Kung is not new to controversy. His book, The Church and Reunion, published before last year's Ecumenical Council in Rome, produced much comment, and was described by Archbishop Heenan of Liverpool as the work of "a young man out to shock his readers."

Since then Dr. Kung has lectured in America, attracting audiences approaching 8,000. At Cambridge the divinity school was packed for him. His lecture was called The Church and Freedom, and he immediately questioned whether the "and" should be "or."

He asked whether Roman Catholic Christianity was compatible with freedom at all, and suggested that there was an entirely just parallel between it and the Kremlin as inflexible authorities protecting men from the "awful possibilities of freedom."

The spirit of the Inquisition was not dead, said Dr. Kung: it was manifested today by the Index of Forbidden Books and the Holy Office, whose procedure of secret indictment, trial and condemnation without defence or appeal was an offence both against the Gospel and natural law.

Dr. Kung hoped that the Roman Church would grasp the concept that the purpose of order was not to exact blind obedience but to ensure freedom. Then, he said, she would have the right to ask Protestants to reconsider their need for order and to recognize that those who destroy it destroy freedom too.

Dr. Kung is not the first Catholic theologian to think along these lines, but none

West Germany Looks Eastward for Trade

By STELLING SLAPPEY From Bonn

Cabinet and lower ranking officials of the Bonn government are holding a series of meetings this week to prepare plans for establishing West German trade missions in two to five more Communist satellite countries.

A trade mission agreement was reached with Poland last month and negotiations between West Germany and Hungary are making slow progress toward setting up a trade mission in Budapest.

If present planning goes as West Germany hopes, negotiations will begin in the next few weeks for increasing trade many times over with Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Romania and possibly Bulgaria.

The series of preparatory meetings this week—which is receiving little publicity in West Germany and practically none outside the country—is expected to set the stage for a major conference next week between Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, chancellor-designate Ludwig Erhard, other top-ranked political leaders and many industrialists.

On broad terms, the meeting this week and the major conference next week will set rules and lay guidelines for participating in increased trade with the Soviet-dominated nations east of Germany.

The order to speed up the tempo of the meetings and to enlarge their scope came from the Adenauer cabinet. Primarily involved are the ministries of foreign affairs, economics, justice and trade.

Certain to receive prominent attention will be ways of building up trade with the Soviet Union itself. Representatives of three steel firms will meet with Adenauer next week to discuss the possibility of government shipyards filling Soviet orders for $175,000,000 of shipping.

To get the trade mission agreement with Poland, West Germany had to make many concessions.

Decisions must now be made on whether West Germany can continue to give such concessions in order to get other trade agreements.

Roads Policy Urged

By HARRY YOUNG
Columnist Business Editor

Canada is one of the very few countries without a co-ordinated national highways policy, and it is time one was established.

Mr. Williams who visited Victoria this week, along with other executives of the Canadian Construction Association, said the old BNA Act policy of making all local roads a responsibility of the provinces was no longer good enough.

The Trans-Canada Highway had been built because of federal-provincial co-operation, and he wanted to make sure that this liaison did not end with the completion of that highway.

Mr. Williams says the need is for the establishment of an inter-provincial roads system that would work closely with provincial road authorities and would facilitate the planning and financing of roads serving more than one province.

He instanced the U.S. interstate highway system as one which Canada could profitably copy.

"We cannot make progress without roads," said Mr. Williams. "They are essential for defence, for industry, for development of natural resources and for our important tourist industry."

The Canadian Construction Association has briefed the federal government on the need for a national highway program.

COUNCIL OF FOREST INDUSTRIES OF B.C.

Mr. Ney, who toured one of the Westland SRN2 Hovercrafts at Montreal last week, believes there would be no difficulty in setting up a fast half-hour service between the cities.

Mr. Ney has a downtown spot marked out for the landing at the Nanaimo end, and he believes that there would be good patronage from pedestrians who are irked by the long land journeys involved in the Departure Bay-Horseshoe Bay route of the government ferries.

The Nanaimo man, however, says he will not enter the ferry business if the government wants to take on such a service.

NOT MOVING

Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, says he is not a candidate for the managing directorship of the International Monetary Fund left vacant by the death of Per Jacobsson, The London Economist suggested he was the man for the job, but Mr. Rasminsky said he would not accept if the offer was made to him.

Bananas are not native to Canada... and neither are lemons. Lemon Hart, for example, is produced under the most wonderful conditions in the Caribbean. But for Lemon Hart, even that is not enough: It's shipped to London where it rests quietly in underground vaults where neither the temperature nor the humidity varies more than a degree or two in year out. Then, meticulously blended and bottled it's finally shipped to Canada... smooth, mellow, delicious... a perfect product of that small area of the world that is famous for distinguished rum.

Pay Increase Ordered For Armed Services

OTTAWA (CP) — Pay increases for all ranks in the armed forces were announced by the government Wednesday. They are retroactive to Oct. 1, 1962.

The last general increase in wages and salaries for the forces was in October, 1960.

CHANGES MADE

The announcement by Associate Defence Minister Lucien Cardin added that procedural changes have been made so that increases can be "granted at more frequent intervals than heretofore."

Increases also will result from a revision in the system of trades pay. This, too, is retroactive to last Oct. 1.

REGULAR RESERVES

The revisions apply to both the regular and reserve forces. The boost in basic pay means an annual increase of $48 for the first four ranks in each of the three services.

Other examples of pay boosts: Leading seaman, and army and air force corporals—an increase of $96 a year.

Navy lieutenants, army captain and flight lieutenant—a $420 increase.

Rear admiral, major-general and air vice marshal—$1,008 more annually.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

It's been a zany start for major league baseball season but despite a considerable amount of the unexpected, there is no real reason to believe that there will be much that is really surprising when the final results are in next Sept. 28. Even now, the best bet is that it will be the San Francisco Giants and the New York Yankees in a world series rematch, and if it shouldn't be that way, the later-league playoff will be between two clubs which figured to be close before the season started.

At least two, and perhaps as many as three or four clubs, rate at least a reasonable chance to beat the Giants but if there is an upset, it will most likely be in the American League. Don't bet on it unless the odds are made attractive enough but this could be the year New York Yankees lose the pennant, and this despite the fact that the league appears to have only one bona fide contender.

For the many who hope this will come to pass, east your bet with the Baltimore Orioles. They finished a rather ragged seventh last season, 19 games out and playing at the finish as if it didn't matter.

But this is a different Baltimore club, bolstered by trades and a different attitude, and it may be good enough to make up the difference. All the Orioles need is to realize their full pitching potential and avoid a key injury. If Milt Pappas, Chuck Estrada and Robin Roberts all have good seasons to go with the good one Steve Barber is sure to have, the Orioles will be close. And if Mike McCormick makes a comeback and rookie Dave McNally comes through, they could well leave the Yankees behind.

If the Orioles are unable to do it, the Yankees should be there again come October. Chicago White Sox and Boston Red Sox are away flying but it takes a lot of imagination to see either as pennant-winners although the possibility exists the White Sox could stick near or at the top for some time on pitching. Kansas City Athletics, expectedly improved, and Los Angeles Angels, expectedly proving that their little run for the marbles last year was one of those things brought about by uniformly weak opposition behind the top club, surely aren't of championship calibre.

Cleveland Indians and, of course, Washington Senators can't be rated as world series material and it's starting to become reasonably obvious that Minnesota Twins and Detroit Tigers, two of the brighter prospects (pre-season) for Yankee-haters, aren't going to make it. The infield-plagued Tigers need Frank Lary at his best and big seasons from Norm Cash, Rocky Colavito and Al Kaline, and all they have at the moment is Kaline. The Twins could step up their pace to get close but the bad start they got without indispensable Harmon Killebrew is quite likely to be more than they can make up in an improved league.

It shouldn't be much different this time out in the National League than it was last year, when everybody all but forgot that Cincinnati Reds finished only three-and-a-half games out during the excitement of the playoff between the Giants and Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Reds, without Bob Purkey and unable to get runs for Joey Jay in his first six starts, got away badly but the Cincinnati club is perhaps a better bet than the Dodgers to beat the Giants. They have fine pitching, perhaps the best in the league with Purkey, Steve Carlton and Frank Robinson is a one-man wrecking crew who would almost provide enough runs by himself if Vada Pinson gets on base often enough.

Any club with Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale to do the starting and Ron Perrano to do the relieving has to be tough, particularly when it has the long-ball threat and speed the Dodgers own. But the Dodgers have two rookies in an unsettled infield. Drysdale has so far been spotty and there has to be more than rumor to reports that they aren't the happiest of clubs.

Only two other clubs rate any reasonable chance to beat out the top three, and of the two Pittsburgh Pirates could have the better chance. They have enough pitching but rookie Bob Bailey has to come through at third-base, shortstop Dick Schofield has to prove he can play a full season after years of being a utility infielder and Roberto Clemente has to have another great season. St. Louis Cardinals are quite solid except in pitching, where there is too little behind Curt Simmons, Ernie Broglio and Ray Washburn.

It could be interesting all the way but the Giants and Yankees look like the solidest clubs in their leagues.

Biggest factor for the Yankees is their exceptional defence. Elston Howard is a gifted receiver and hardly a game passes which doesn't see Clete Boyer, Bobby Richardson, Tony Kubek, Tom Tresh or Mickey Mantle come up with hit-saving plays. It's a defence which makes Yankee pitching adequate, and behind it is the home-run threat and a replacement, for every regular except Mantle, who can do a reasonably good, or more often, excellent job when needed.

As for the Giants, their pitching may be a bit on the veteran side but with Felipe Alou, Willie McCovey, Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda to be faced in order, they quickly make old men out of opposing pitchers. Hope, but don't bet too much that the world series this year won't be a rematch. Things are getting back to normal.

Detroit Deserts Edmonton; WHL Withdrawal Delayed

SEATTLE (AP) — Edmonton Flyers, who lost their National Hockey League support in a surprise move Wednesday, joined Calgary Stampede in excusing themselves from the Western Hockey League meeting here.

The two Canadian clubs told the other six members at the league's three-day meeting they needed more time to discuss whether or not they would withdraw from the league. They said their decision would be given by the end of the month.

Earlier, Sid Abel of the Detroit Red Wings advised the WHL his team was withdrawing all support from the Edmonton Exhibition Association, leaving the city with a league franchise but no players.

Edmonton and Calgary representatives met and then decided not to participate in further talks.

The two teams told the meeting that if they were withdrawing they would announce it by May 29. If not, they said, they would like another meeting in Calgary May 31 to discuss their final intentions.

Edmonton announced that Anderson, general manager of the Edmonton association, said Abel's announcement was "staggering. We had no indication at all from Detroit that they were intending any action of this nature."

He said it was known Detroit was "not doing well financially. But we felt advantages accruing from our operation would outweigh this player development and so forth."

Calgary and Edmonton representatives said they were returning home to see what could be done at the local level about remaining in the loop.

There had been reports the two teams would drop out, but the Red Wings announcement came as a surprise.

Calgary had expressed dissatisfaction with its working arrangement with Chicago's Black Hawks and indicated it might quit the league or suspend operations for a year.

Orioles, Yankees After White Sox

New York Yankees and Baltimore Orioles, refurbished to loom as pennant contenders, are hot on their trail but Chicago White Sox and Boston Red Sox, also refurbished this season, have the bit in their teeth and continue to run smoothly out in front in the American League.

A two-run homer by ex-Oriole Dave Nicholson and a two-run single by ex-Oriole Ron Hansen sparked the White Sox to a 7-1 win over Detroit Tigers which kept the Pale Hose ahead of the Red Sox, who have lost fewer games than any club in either major league.

A newcomer, obtained chiefly for his right-hand punch, sparked Boston to a 9-3, 7-6 sweep of Los Angeles Angels.

Dick Stuart, who finds the inviting left field wall at Fenway Park to his liking, hit a grand slam home run in the first game, hit a three-run homer in the second game. And when that wasn't quite enough, he scored the run which broke a 6-6 tie and sent the Angels down to seventh place.

But apparently on the move at last, the Yankees ran their winning streak to four in a row by edging past Minnesota Twins, 4-3, with a two-run eighth-inning climaxed by a game-winning single by Elston Howard. Mickey Mantle had brought the Yankees close in the sixth inning, when they trailed, 6-3, with a two-run homer.

Milt Pappas, making his first start since being spiked on April 28, returned with a three-hitter, and set down 18 batters in a row in one stretch, to make his record 3-0 as the Orioles looked good in trimming Washington Senators.

But the best pitching of all came at Cleveland, where Mudcat Grant gave only a third-inning double to Wayne Causey and an eighth-inning single to Chuck Essegian as the Indians slipped by Kansas City Athletics, 1-0.

San Francisco Giants boosted their lead in the National League by accepting a gift victory from Pittsburgh Pirates. JUST ONE HIT

The Giants got all their runs in a 4-3 decision in an inning in which the only hit was a lead-off single. One scored on a bases-loaded walk to pitcher Juan Marichal, one when Felipe Alou was hit by a pitch and two when rookie Bob Bailey made an error.

Result left the Giants ahead by two and a half games when Milwaukee Braves beat St. Louis Cardinals, 9-3, in a game which was within two outs of being a no-hitter for Milwaukee southpaw Bob Hendley.

Hendley seemed to get unsettled when an error put a runner on with one out in the ninth. Curt Flood tripped in a run, scored when Dick Groat followed with a single and a third run came in after a second error and a single before Hendley got the side out.

Ron Fairly drove in the winning run with a two-out single in the 12th inning as Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Philadelphia 3-2 behind a 12-strikeout performance by Sandy Koufax.

NOT AFRAID
"That was one way of getting that number and Abby did it. The American knew right then and there that Abby was not afraid of her and that stare told her more vividly than words that Abby was going to run her into the ground."

The two girls had posted times of about two minutes 10 seconds in previous races. When the big one came along, Abby won it easily in 2:38.2, two seconds faster than the American who took the second-place silver.

Then there was 16-year-old Abigail Hoffman of Toronto, who finished a well-beaten last in the 1962 British Empire Games half-mile at Perth, Australia. This time she won the 800 metres.

"One day, while walking in the athletes' village," recounted Twigg, "Abby saw Leah Ferris of the U.S., the girl she had to beat in the half. Abby didn't say a word. She just stared and glared at this girl and the American because she flustered and confused she walked into a lamp post."

Nancy who had never competed outside Canada before, also won the women's shot-put.

The Soviets had a couple of seven-foot men in their stable — Robert Shavladzadze and Valeri Brunel — but they weren't clearing the seven-foot barrier in pre-Games training.

Thomas the invincible was a certain winner. But when the time came to pass out the medals, he got a third-place bronze. Shavladzadze and Brunel finished one-two with legends of seven feet one inch.

The impressive 19-year-old Thomas, who held the world record of seven feet 3 1/2 inches, failed in three tries at seven-foot-one.

There have been many other cases, perpetrated by men and women who have ice water running through their veins after experiencing the hard knocks of international competition. They employ various methods — staring out opponents, telling them they are the greatest, or sneering at them.

So, it comes as a surprise to hear of a couple of teen-aged Canadian girls — one in her first shot at international competition, the other her second — working the old confidence game. They applied different techniques.

Nancy McCredie, the 18-year-old whiz from Brampton, Ont., and the only track and field double gold medal winner in the Pan-American Games at Brazil this year, did a masterful job in the women's discus, which she won handily.

In practice before her event, she worked out with Americans and others and threw from a standing throw. Her distance was just about equal to that of the American women who had made the full turn before letting go.

"She went out there and didn't take a full windup before throwing at any time," said Ken Twigg of Toronto, manager of Canada's track and field team, on his return this week. "When the Americans saw this they were frightened to death of her and we knew it. It was a real good psychological manoeuvre."

There have been many other cases, perpetrated by men

I don't mean to be rude to the womenfolk of Britain, for whom I have always had the highest regard, but I'm shedding no tears about the fact that we are soon to see the backs of one particular brand of the species.

The days of the lady marker are numbered. Only in dear old sentimental, illogical Britain could we have put a bunch of tweedie, thick-stockinged old dears into positions of absolute authority in a game so masculine as big-money tournament golf.

Already, though the British tournament season is hardly under way, there has been one example of how these well-meaning amateurs can make a mistake.

This time Dai Rees, Britain's Ryder Cup captain, was the victim. He was making pretty heavy weather of playing Lancashire's Birkdale course in a high wind and finished one round with an 83. He was so annoyed with himself he signed his card in a bit of a temper.

Next morning he opened his newspaper—and was even more annoyed to discover that he'd been credited, or rather debited, with an 84.

Dai sprang out of bed and started making inquiries. He finally discovered that his marker, who clearly hadn't been concentrating, had given him a four instead of a three at the eleventh. Dai, of course, was also at fault.

He should have spotted it before signing his card. But, after all, a professional golfer doesn't expect to have to check a marker's mathematics.

As it happens it wasn't too serious. Dai didn't finish in one of the leading positions, but it still cost him about £30 in prize money.

But just as easily his marker might well have credited him with one stroke fewer than he had actually played. That would have led to immense trouble and Dai would have been immediately disqualified.

Dying Race

Amateur markers, both men and women, have been the vogue for years in Britain. But by the end of this season they will be a dying race for — at last — Britain is to adopt the American system of having pairs of professionals marking each others' cards at the completion of every hole.

This, equally, has disadvantages for it tends to upset your concentration if you have to make a mental note of what your opponent is doing. But, believe me, it's the lesser of two evils.

Most pro golfers, of course, have been too polite to protest in the past. But sometimes we used to dread the markers who had been assigned to us for a round... particularly some of the women.

There were the bossy ones. These were generally the middle-aged wives of successful businessmen who used to regard professional golfers in much the same way as they would have regarded professional chauffeurs or hotel porters.

There were the garrulous ones. These never seemed to stop nattering and you always had the uneasy feeling at the back of your mind that they were about to break out in a fresh torrent of talk just as you reached the top of your backswing.

There were also the nervy ones. These were probably the worst of the lot for they never seemed confident of their own ability to count up to four or five. "Let's see, Mr. Faulkner, that was a five wasn't it?" "Yes," you'd say, and walk on knowing that you'd have to keep an eye on the marker rather than the marker keep an eye on you.

All these things might sound trivial to the non-golfer. But, believe me, it's the trivial things that can upset a man's concentration.

This year there is more than £80,000 prize money at stake on the British circuit and, with more Americans intending to compete for it than in any previous post-war year, it is only right that we should treat the game as big business. (All rights reserved)

'Don't Bury Arnie Yet'—Lema

THE Arnold PALMER METHOD

A CURE FOR SWAYING

Early in the golf season, when one's muscles are less supple than normally, players are most susceptible to swaying on the backswing. Swaying occurs when the player moves his body laterally to the right (Illustration 1) instead of tilting and turning his shoulders and torso (Illustration 2) on a central axis.

Swaying produces all sorts of directional errors as well as loss of distance.

To eliminate swaying, make certain that during the backswing your weight remains primarily on the inside of your right foot (Illustration 2) and doesn't move to the outside. This will help you to coil, rather than sway, your body.

Big Crowd Attends Lipscomb's Funeral

RYE, N.Y. (AP)—"Arnold Palmer is the greatest golfer in the world—don't bury him yet."

This word of caution was passed along Wednesday by Tony Lema, young hotshot of the professional tour, on the sport's latest guessing game: Has Jack Nicklaus overtaken Palmer as the No. 1 man in tournament golf?

"Not at all," insisted Lema, runner-up to Nicklaus in both the Masters and the Tournament of Champions at Las Vegas. "I'm getting a little fed up with this talk that Arnie is a has-been, and you've been hearing more and more of it lately."

It just happens that Palmer is tired and in a temporary slump and Nicklaus is riding a hot streak. But Arnie will snap back—mark my words. He's still the best."

Lema, 29, was here Wednesday for a practice tour of the Westchester Country Club, site of the $100,000 Thunderbird Classic June 13-18.

BALTIMORE (AP)—The medical examiner made it official Wednesday — Gene (Big Daddy) Lipscomb was killed by an overdose of heroin.

The giant defensive tackle for Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League died on the way to hospital early last Friday after he was found unconscious in a west Baltimore apartment.

"Big Edge" Silvertown

Other tires have narrow edges, concentrate rubber dead centre, where wear is least—

BFG Silvertowns have extra rubber on their edges, where tires work most, wear most

It puts the rubber where the wear is

BFG puts more rubber where the wear is to give you more miles for your money. Tires wear first on the edges (a look at any worn-out tire proves this). So, it stands to reason, the tire with the Big Edge will give you the Big Edge in mileage.

Of course there's more to a tire than mileage. That's why BFG has taken comfort and safety into consideration and developed a special "soft" rubber that smoothes bumps but doesn't bounce. Packs extra braking power, too. B.F. Goodrich puts the right kind of rubber where it does the most good... so you can put your money where it does the most good. Buy famous BFG "Big Edge" Silvertowns.

DOUBLE GUARANTEE:

Lifetime guarantee on workmanship and material—plus 24 month guarantee against blow-outs, cuts, breaks caused by road hazards of normal driving.

Grant King's Latest Flies on Saturday

Grant King has always been known as a mean man with a mill, so when the Victoria mechanic builds a car you can bet it will do everything short of fly.

King's latest creation will be on display at Western Speedway Saturday night, and it's only one of the reasons officials say they'll have the fastest collection of cars ever assembled on Vancouver Island for the season's first modified sportsman show.

King built the car for Bill Crow of Boise, Idaho, runner-up to Eldon Rasmussen in the 1961 Daffodil Cup race here. Crow heads an impressive guest list Saturday.

U.S. DRIVERS
Other American entries include Bob Gregg, George Robertson, Don Hishop, Bob Morgan, Joe Webby, John Halgerson, Steve Meyers, Floyd Hawk and Mac McTaggart.

Island drivers competing will be Billy Foster, Al Smith, Bob Mawle, Gerry Sylvester, Dave Cooper, Jim Gallagher, Gary Kershaw, Ray Pottinger, Nils Anderson and several others.

ALL-OUT ASSAULT
Smith will be driving the car Foster did so well in last season, and one of the night's highlights is expected to be an all-out assault on the track record set by Foster.

Meet will include trophy dash, four heats and a 50-lap main event with up to 30 cars taking part.

Time trials start at 7:30.

Jones Hits 153 MPH

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Parnelli Jones smashed through still another speed ceiling as he turned a practice lap at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Wednesday at 153.139 miles an hour.

Jones became the first driver to demolish the once-magical barrier of 150 miles an hour when he turned in a single-lap speed of 150.729 m.p.h. in qualifications for the 1962 500-mile race. Only three other drivers, the latest one Wednesday, have hurdled the mark since then.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Seventy nominees were announced Wednesday for the $162,100 Hollywood Gold Cup, the turf classic that will climax the 55-day Hollywood Park meeting July 13.

Celtic Downed, 3-0

Rangers Complete Double

GLASGOW (Reuters)—Glasgow Rangers completed a league and a Cup double Wednesday night when they beat home-town soccer rival, Celtic, 3-0 in the Scottish Football Association Cup final replay.

Rangers, who had already clinched the Scottish League championship and a place in next season's European Cup, killed Celtic's hopes with two goals in the first half and added a third after the interval.

Rangers and Celtic had drawn 1-1 in the original final earlier this month.

Rangers always had the measure of their opponents Wednesday night and only over-anxiety denied them more goals.

The Cup trophy was Rangers' 17th in the history of the competition, equalling Celtic's record.

No serious incidents were reported in the crowd of 120,000.

Rangers' Scottish international wingers Willie Henderson and Dave Wilson spearheaded many of their attacks. Wilson netted one of the goals and the other two came from inside-left Brand.

It was the first time the two Glasgow giants had met in the final for 35 years.

Celtic gambled with a strange looking forward line, but the team changes failed to add punch to the attack.

Brand and Wilson formed a dangerous left wing pair for Rangers, while centre-forward Millar was always up to add his support. Millar hit a post in a spell of incessant Ranger attacks in the first half.

Celtic moved well in midfield but lacked thrust near the goal. Rangers were the more aggressive side and their forwards inter-changed positions smoothly.

Hotspur Winner In European Event

ROTTERDAM (Reuters)—London's Tottenham Hotspur gave Britain a major European soccer trophy for the first time Wednesday night, defeating Spain's Atletico Madrid 5-1 to win the European Cup of Cup Winners tournament.

The London team was ahead 2-0 at half-time, but saw its lead drop to 2-1 a minute after half-time when the Madrid captain scored on a penalty kick.

Boxing Ban

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—A bill to ban professional boxing in Illinois was endorsed Tuesday by the state senate license committee.

The 7-0 vote advanced the bill to the senate floor for final action. A similar bill is at passage stage in the Illinois House.

Reforms For Lords

LONDON (Reuters)—The government announced Wednesday it has accepted recommendations for reform of the House of Lords made recently by an all-party committee.

The reforms will enable a member of the House of Lords to renounce his peerage for life and run for election to the House of Commons.

Lain Macleod, Commons House leader, said the government will introduce a bill to put the changes into effect in time for the next general election.

Decision in 48 Hours

Ottawa Mapping Plans For Columbia Talks

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday the government is considering the steps it will take to consult British Columbia and the United States on amendments it proposes for the Columbia River treaty.

"We hope to have the procedural part of it all straightened up in the next 48 hours," he told reporters before a morning cabinet meeting.

CABINET MEETING

Mr. Pearson said the procedure to be followed and the order in which the provincial and American governments should be consulted probably would be discussed by cabinet during the day.

On his return last Saturday from Hanoi Port, Mass., Mr. Pearson said he had obtained President Kennedy's agreement that some changes should be made in the treaty governing the long-delayed hydro-electric development on the Columbia River.

Two Rulers Map Stand On U.S. Bases

MEXICO (UPI)—The rulers of Spain and Portugal completed nine hours of summit talks Wednesday and were believed to have worked out a common approach toward U.S. military bases on the Iberian Peninsula.

The specific results of the conference between Generalissimo Franco and Prime Minister Salazar were not disclosed, but a communiqué announced they had reaffirmed "the perfect understanding and vigorous solidarity" of their two nations.

The official communiqué said they reviewed "the international situation and the main problems of interest for Spain and Portugal." Informal sources said these problems included African policies and the relations of the two nations with the U.S.

Boeing Settles

SEATTLE (AP)—The AFL-CIO machinists' union announced a three-year contract with the Boeing Co. was approved in a vote of union production workers—14,205 to 4,698, assuring a long period of labor peace in the aerospace industry.

Race Riots—'Told You So'

JOHANNESBURG (UPI)—Pro-government South African newspapers have adopted a "told you so" attitude towards the racial disturbances in Birmingham, Ala., saying they provide justification for apartheid (separation of the races).

Die Vaderland, linking racial incidents in Alabama, Britain and Nairobi, said Wednesday, "self-preservation is a common factor when whites and blacks clash. This cannot be evaded by fine-sounding slogans or excuses."

"Far be it from us to reveal in these racial outbursts. We follow these developments with interest only because, with racial balance loaded so heavily against us, they contain a serious warning that we must push ahead with enforcement of our racial policies with the greatest possible speed."

The Afrikaans morning newspaper Die Transvaler linked racial incidents in the United States and Britain, saying, "When one points to such incidents they say in defence that in these two countries, governments do everything possible to fight racial feelings while in South Africa the government encourages them."

"This is naturally false. The difficulties in America and Britain show for the umpteenth time how pernicious it is to bring together people of diverse racial origins socially and in other ways. In normal people, there is natural repulsion against such things."

Ex-City Man Faces Trial For Murder

VANCOUVER (CP)—Douglas, Harold Brown, 28, formerly of Victoria, was committed for trial Wednesday on a charge of capital murder in the shooting death April 19 of a Roman Catholic priest.

Rev. Cuthbert Seward, 51, was shot to death when he went to the door of the monastery adjacent to the church.

Brown once played football for Calgary Stampede of the Western Football Conference.

Rev. John Galvin testified he was downstairs in the monastery when he heard a noise like a shot, then a thud.
He went upstairs to the entrance and found Father Cuthbert on the floor.

Michele Mastropier and Rocco Melchiorre said they were standing in front of the church when they saw a man drive up to the monastery, go to the door and fire point-blank at the priest.

Three Parties Map Session Plans

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal,
Progressive Conservative and Social Credit MPs mapped plans for the session of Parliament opening today at separate caucus meetings Wednesday.

From the meetings emerged a picture for the early days of the session of the Liberals in confident but unprovocative mood, and the Conservatives aiming at providing stiff and lively opposition to the minority government.

The attitude of Social Credit, split in recent weeks by internal disputes, appeared in doubt.
The rank and file met for an hour before National Leader
Robert Thompson and Deputy Leader Real Caouette emerged from a tete-a-tete in Mr.
Thompson's office to join the main body of their followers.

Conservatives said Opposition Leader Diefenbaker promised followers a "responsible" line in criticizing the Liberal government's program. He also indicated that the opposition should be ready to talk though with the minority government.

Meeting a few hours after the Conservatives, the Liberals gave Prime Minister Pearson a big round of applause and a similar burst when the new cabinet ministers were introduced.

FALSE TEETH

That Loosen
Need Not Embarrass
Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plates dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you.
Just sprinkle a little PASTERETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor breath". Get PASTERETH at drug counters everywhere. Adm.

you're spoiled!

Admit it... you've never had such special treatment! But you deserve to be spoiled, Mr. Johnson. After all, you just bought your family a new Valiant, the best compact car on the road today. And, Mr.
Johnson, your new Valiant will spoil you, too, with its Slant-Six power, smooth dependable ride, big car comfort and thrifty money-saving ways. This kind of value is likely to spoil you for any other car. For good! Your wife loves Valiant too—we can tell. (She didn't open doors for the old car!) The fact is, Valiant wins most people on the very first ride... which only goes to show what compelling good looks and polished good manners will do for a compact. But Valiant doesn't rest on its first-impression laurels. Fifty-thousand miles later—you'll still bless the day you bought Valiant. Relax and enjoy it, Mr. Johnson.

Live the life of Riley. He drives a Valiant, too!

No other compact does so much for you

- The 5-year—55,000-mile power-train warranty—protects you against major repairs (including parts and labour) and this warranty stays with the car for greater trade-in value.
- Valiant's standard-equipment alternator keeps your battery fully charged and ensures fast, positive starts!
- Valiant outperforms all the other compacts with its 101 hp Slant-Six

- engine (biggest standard engine in its class) and with its optional 145 hp
"six"—it's terrific.
- Valiant means savings—with Slant-Six economy, with 4000-mile intervals between engine oil changes, and 32,000-mile intervals between chassis lubrications.
- Valiant's self-adjusting brakes have far more usable brake lining area than any of the other compacts, for greater safety.

Wandering Ducks Are Wild Ones

Wild mallard ducks found wandering in many parts of Victoria at this time of year aren't fugitives from city parks. Every spring, parks administrator W. H. Warren gets a flood of phone calls from citizens asking him to pick up "his" ducks. He wants the well-intentioned callers to know the ducks are wild and become extremely tame during mating season, just passed.

37 Planes on Fire Duty

B.C. will mount a 37-plane strike force to fight forest fires this year. Forest officials said yesterday the armada will go on red-alert July 1 but is available right now if the fire hazard mounts. The fleet is largely unchanged from last year when it was set up along new lines. But the new system, which consisted of using "bird-dog" type light aircraft for directing an expanded fleet of water bombers, never met the test of a serious fire season.

Last year's season was one of the lightest on record.

B.C. this year will spend about $800,000 on its forest air fleet and most of the business will go to four companies.

Skyways Air Service will provide and man 12 Avenger fire bombers plus four "bird dogs" at four primary bases. Okanagan Helicopters will provide 12 rotary-wing craft. Pacific

Western will supply six Beavers and occasionally an Otter, and Cariboo Air Charter will provide two light aircraft capable of landing on rough terrain.

Three Avengers and one "bird dog" will be stationed at bases at Smithers, Prince George, Kamloops and Cranbrook.

A forest service official said that beaumont will be used almost exclusively by the fire bombers this year.

Housewives' Battle To Save Home Given Runaround

Two Victoria housewives say they were given the runaround by provincial officials Wednesday in their fight to prevent the June 1 demolition of historic Cloverdale House, but their campaign is picking up support.

Mrs. Paul McCulloch, 1132 Goodwin, went to Premier Bennett's office five times without getting in to see the premier.

She said she is beginning to think the government is not interested in preservation of the home of B.C.'s first Victoria-born premier, the late Simon Fraser Tolmie, because it is pouring all its money into the Barkerville restoration program.

LOVAT AVENUE

Mrs. McCulloch and Mrs. George Monckton, 1894 Hampshire, are rallying numerous groups and societies in Victoria for a last-ditch stand to preserve the 103-year-old landmark on Lovat Avenue in Saanich.

Meanwhile, Herbert Pissner, owner of The Canadian Crest, 340 Island Highway, said he has made arrangements to dismantle and move the older, central part of the building to his motel for reconstruction as a public attraction.

HISTORIC SITE

Mrs. McCulloch is trying to get the cabinet to declare Cloverdale House a historic site to stop demolition.

She also hopes the government can be persuaded to appoint an advisory board to look after the property under terms provided by the Archaeological and Historic Sites Protection Act.

OUT OF TOWN

Mrs. McCulloch was advised by Mr. Bennett's executive assistant she should see the deputy provincial secretary to have the matter brought before the cabinet.

She said she was told in another office both the provincial secretary and his deputy were out of town.

Landmark Reopening

A $31,000 renovation job at historic Helmsley House on Elliott Street will be unveiled by Premier Bennett at 3:30 p.m. Friday.

He will reopen the 110-year-old landmark following its renovation by the public works department, and no admission will be charged until after the holiday weekend. After that the cost will be 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for children.

Noise Met In Oak Bay

A parking ban after 11 p.m. on the Esplanade has been recommended to Oak Bay council by the Oak Bay police commission.

The move follows complaints at the last regular council meeting by Esplanade residents of late night noise.

She said she also understands the owner of Cloverdale House, A. L. Miller, 3180 Humbler, is leaving this morning for Germany and will be away for several months.

Hickory Dickory Oops

By JÜRGEN HENNE
Rats! One rat has quit the rat race and refuses to obey orders any more.

The case of the reluctant rodent developed as Mrs. Marilyn Clayton, 35, was training the first instalment of eight rats in her bid to bring Hickory Dickory Dock to life inside a clock.

Victoria's nursery rhyme park, Wooded Wonderland, will open on May 24 with two complements of eight rats each performing, and two to three trained rats standing by.

Park entrepreneur Alf Peterson, a psychology student at Victoria University, is sleeping in his trailer office at the park to save time.

The Hickory Dickory Dock clock's paint coat was finished yesterday and all systems are go for the rats who will, on a signal, run up a winding staircase in the clock, ring a bell and return in a rerun of the famous nursery rhyme.

Trainer Mrs. Clayton has no explanation why one of the rats quit, Mr. Peterson said.

She is the wife of Victoria University English instructor John Clayton.

By the way, the performing rats are not ordinary basement pests. Mr. Peterson imported the two-tones—black and white—Long-Evans hooded species from a rat laboratory in California at approximately $2 apiece. The bill hasn't arrived yet.

"The rats will be ready Friday," he said. "But we won't open the park and the rat show until May 24 to make sure all bugs in the rats have been spiced out."

Fate of the striking rat is yet undecided.

Residents at Prospect Lake Angered by Water Secrecy

Prospect Lake residents are angry because neither health nor municipal officials will tell them whether their lake water is unfit to drink.

A report from health officials on the condition of Prospect Lake is in the hands of Saanich officials and will be dealt with during a public works committee meeting in the council chamber at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Meanwhile, residents are beginning to wonder whether operation of Greater Victoria's garbage dump in the nearby Highlands district is causing contamination of their water.

—If there is contamination, Prospect Lake and District Community Association president Brian Houle expressed bitter disappointment that Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer of the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health, declined an invitation to speak to the group after conferring with Reeve Stanley Murphy on the matter.

"Due to the fact that we are unable to forecast the policy to be outlined by the reeve and council, we regret we are unable to be present at the meeting," stated a letter from Dr. Whitbread which was read to 40 persons attending the meeting.

WHY SECRECY?
"Why is there so much secrecy about the findings in the health report?" asked Mr. Houle.

"Prospect Lake is under a cloud—nobody knows if the water is fit to drink or if it is fit to swim in. We can't get anybody to make a public statement."

MERGER RACKET

"You can imagine what property values have done in the past few weeks. It's all part of the amalgamation racket. Victoria wants to steal Prospect Lake," he said.

Kinsmen Club Elects Officers

President of the Kinsmen Club of Sidney for the 1963-64 term is Thomas Boyd.

Other officers are Hugh Hollingworth, vice-president; Joseph Fenton, secretary; Elwood Beattie, registrar; Norman Lang, treasurer, and directors Charles Tyler, Raymond Bowcott and Ronald Evans.

INSTANT TANKS

Meanwhile, Farmer Construction has begun installing onshore tanks to hold fuel for a floating Standard Oil refueling facility and Pacific Pipeline driver is at work building the float for the refueling station.

He said main tender for construction of the marina-restaurant should be let in about two weeks.

MORE PARKING

Filling and rock facing by Oak Bay municipality to enlarge the nearby municipal parking lot continues, Mr. Wright said. He said rock from the Gillespie firm's blasting will be used in enlarging the parking lot.

Band Concert Planned Sunday

The Edmonds, Wash., high school band will give a concert in Willows Park, Oak Bay, at 3 p.m. Sunday, weather permitting.

The band is one of a number coming to Victoria for Victoria Day weekend celebrations.

Road, said during the meeting that he thinks thousands of seagulls digging about in the garbage dump and then swimming in Kilarney Lake are causing pollution of the small lake.

IN THE WINTER months when rain raises the level of the lake, the contaminated water runs down a stream bed into Prospect Lake, he said.

"If pollution is coming from the garbage dump, they've got a big problem on their hands. They'll have to find another dump or a new way of disposing of garbage," Mr. Wright said.

WHY SECRECY?
"Why is there so much secrecy about the findings in the health report?" asked Mr. Houle.

"Prospect Lake is under a cloud—nobody knows if the water is fit to drink or if it is fit to swim in. We can't get anybody to make a public statement."

Hovercraft Ferries 'Ten Years Away'

If Vancouver Islanders want to ride 75 miles an hour on a B.C. government hovercraft ferry, they will have to wait about 10 years.

That is the opinion of government ferry service manager Monty Aldous on his return from a demonstration ride in a hovercraft at Montreal.

He believes it will take the manufacturing company at least that long to produce a hovercraft large enough to merit consideration for mass transportation of passengers and vehicles.

Mr. Aldous said the model he rode in travelled 75 miles an hour and didn't even need seat belts.

"It was the smoothest transportation I have ever been in."

The hovercraft rides over land or water on a cushion of air generated by powerful engines using downward thrust propellers. Its forward motion comes from conventional propellers.

The ferry service manager said the largest model currently under construction will carry 120 passengers. But the addition of three ordinary automobiles would cut the human load to 32.

Long-range planning calls for a craft capable of simultaneously carrying 40 vehicles and 800 passengers.

Few Beaches Barred To Local Swimmers

Metro health authorities have approved local beaches for swimming this season—with two exceptions.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer, said surveys taken throughout Greater Victoria in the past two weeks show the situation to be "very satisfactory."

"No swimming allowed" signs have been posted at Twin Beaches opposite 572 Beach Drive in Oak Bay. In the city signs are displayed on beaches on both sides of Clover Point sewer outfall. The section declared off limits to swimmers extends from St. Charles to Howe.

HARBOR UNFIT

The area of Victoria harbor also remains unfit for swimming.

All beaches in Esquimalt and both fresh water and sea beaches in Saanich, including Prospect Lake where some difficulty is being experienced with the supply of drinking water taken from the lake, have been passed for swimming.

FIVE LAST YEAR
Dr. Whitbread said there has been some improvement over last year when five beaches were posted with signs barring swimmers.

Taken off the list this year is Banfield Park where latest tests showed the pollution count had dropped to a level considered safe.

Efforts to bring about further improvement where beach pollution still exists depends on extension of existing sewer outfalls, the medical health officer said.

CAPITAL BUDGET

City council decided recently to consider including extension of existing sewer outfalls in a proposed capital budget to be placed before Victoria ratepayers this December.

The first stage of any such project would probably be extension of Clover Point outfall at a cost of some $175,000.

FAIR REINSTITATED

Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell said no action would be taken against the organizers following receipt at 4 p.m. yesterday of a letter from the government stating that the exhibition had been reinstated as an agricultural fair.

The situation was discussed at an emergency meeting held earlier Wednesday in the mayor's office attended by Chief Constable John Blackstock and Jaycee president Eric Charman and other fair officials.

Mr. Charman said later that "only one person" complained about gambling at the fair. "I'll challenge anyone to prove there were more than one."

Games of chance on the midway "are perfectly in order and well within the meaning of the code—there are no problems," he said.

COME AND JOIN US

"To those who sit at home and pick up the telephone to make complaints, I have only one thing to say: 'Come down here and join the majority who are having a good time,'" said the Jaycee president.

Ald. Dowell said fair officials thought accreditation as an agricultural fair was automatic since it had been given in 1961 and 1962. Immediate steps were taken to rectify the situation, he said.

THEY'LL TIGHTEN UP

Jaycee officials also promised to "tighten up" on controls of some midway games of chance following receipt of complaints

Law Almost Rules Out Fair Car Draw, Games

Victoria's Exhibition yesterday almost found itself on the wrong side of the law.

In the course of investigation of complaints of midway gambling it was discovered the Junior Chamber of Commerce's rough an oversight had not applied for re-accreditation as an agricultural fair.

Failure to do so meant that games of chance and the door draw for a new automobile and $500 worth of merchandise prizes were not permitted under the Criminal Code of Canada.

Jaycee officials also promised to "tighten up" on controls of some midway games of chance following receipt of complaints from an unspecified number of customers.

One citizen, who asked that his name be withheld, said he took his small daughter to the fair and was angered by what he termed "this pitiful business of taking pennies from kids."

Despite signs which barred minors from participation several youngsters under 21 were seen to participate in games of chance.

WITH PARENTS

However, the only minors seen playing games of chance when a reporter strolled through the midway last night were children accompanied by their parents.

In these instances, the parents were seen paying the stall keepers and encouraging their children to try their hand at the games.

BARKERS KEPT BUSY
Some of the games of chance seemed to be having a hard time drawing customers and barkers were kept busy trying to hustle up business.

City detectives keeping a close watch on activities at the grounds said at 9 p.m. that everything was under control and there had been no trouble.

Has Work Rejected By Alberta Jury

By JULIE CLARK

To present a representational picture of Canada from coast to coast is the aim of Edmonton artist, Rose Leonard. She is in Victoria until May 23 with her exhibition at the T. Eaton Co.

"Before I go to the States or to Europe with my show, I will have to do more paintings, in order to give a better idea of all Canada. Although I don't like painting cities as much as landscapes, they are necessary, especially for an American show, where some people don't realize the size of our metropolitan areas."

Miss Leonard has been invited to show in the United States and there are possibilities of her going to Edinburgh.

WESTERN TOUR

Although this is her first trip to Victoria, she has done many sketches of West Coast scenes on previous tours to Vancouver. Her present show will take her to Kelowna, Kamloops and Calgary, as well as Vancouver.

"When my husband and I tour, I make sketches which are worked up into paintings for the next season."

FEW ABSTRACTS

Definitely a representational artist, Rose Leonard has only one or two abstracts in her present collection.

She is not against good modern painters, but her own paintings were excluded from an Alberta jury show.

"It is unfortunate that many so-called abstract artists don't know what they are doing. They slap some paint on because it's the thing to do."

"In the Alberta show, where most of paintings chosen to hang were abstract, it was suggested that the rejected pictures also be hung in order that the public might judge for itself which it preferred."

"Although I make a lot of money out of my pansy pictures, they were turned down flat by the art gallery."

It was suggested that she go to the gallery in Victoria, but Miss Leonard feels it would be useless, for this is not the kind of work they want. But it is the work they want. But it is the work they want.

Edmonton artist Rose Leonard.

apparently what the public will pay for.

"If people spend money on a painting, they want something they can live with," she continued. "I like the idea of creating something new, but it doesn't have to be ugly and meaningless or irritate the public just because it's abstract."

PANSIES

Mountains, trees, rivers and lakes predominate in her work, but Rose Leonard has much demand for her flower studies. Pansies are her favorite and many successful reproductions have been made for "hasty notes." She chooses pastel chalks on paper velour for the originals.

"All that I know I learned from nature. I never studied art, but have perfected my own techniques," she explained.

One of her first art projects was to make Valentine cards for all the other children in her St. Paul, Alta., schoolhouse.

She added that "nature just thrills me. I never tire of the smells and sounds of it. And I try to show it in all its moods from dawn to dusk, in all seasons and weathers." In every city she visits, Miss Leonard tries to find something that is typical and unique. She has already taken a drive up the Malahat.

"I'm always looking for the unusual. I plan to paint the Butchart Gardens in the rain."

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I live in an apartment house which has about 50 tenants. Several months ago I noticed my mail appeared to have been opened and the envelopes glued back together. I thought it was imagination, but when I discovered one day that the glue was still damp, I was certain.

I decided to keep my eyes open and catch the culprit. As I suspected, it was the wife of the building superintendent. I saw her Jimmy the lock which gave her access to all the mail in the building. (We each have our own key but one master key can open the whole works.)

Isn't this illegal? What should I do about it?—ANTI NOSE TROUBLE.

Dear Anti: There are Federal laws that clobber people for tampering with the U.S. mails. The superintendent's wife could be faced with something far more serious than "nose trouble" if you reported her.

Give her the break she doesn't deserve and tell her you are wise. Unless she is a total nut you'll have no more trouble.

Dear Ann Landers: You are always knocking liquor. I wonder if you have the nerve to print a letter which proves that liquor can do some good once in a while.

Last weekend my husband and I celebrated our anniversary. We decided to do the town right.

At 3:00 a.m. we ended up at a Chinese Key Club which is may have a sight or hearing problem but I haven't had time to take him to a doctor. "I'll see if his grandmother can help him with the work he's behind in. I'm dead tired after putting in a full day on my job and when I get home there's the washing and ironing."

Invariably these children from broken homes are nervous and high strung. They are starved for affection. We teachers can't be father and mother to these poor kids—though heaven knows we try.

Please print this letter for the benefit of parents who may be planning a divorce. Remind them that parents chose each other. Children didn't ask to be born. I say a man and wife should stick together and learn to live with their problems—whatever they may be.—DAKOTA TEACHER.

Dear Teacher: Your letter has a good bit of truth in it, but some marital situations are impossible. Children fare better with one sane, relaxed parent than with two nervous wreckers who are constantly at each other's throats. I sometimes recommend separation (not divorce) and I will continue to do so.

CAC Protects ...

By NANCY PHILLIPS
TORONTO (TNS) — Three cheers and a tiger for the Canadian housewife's best friend: the Consumers' Association of Canada.

Since its formation in 1947 the CAC, whose primary aim is to protect, inform and speak for the consumer, has persuaded producers to restore vitamins in apple juice, secured better labeling for clothing, fought against trading stamps, resale-price maintenance, harmful food additives, unspectated meat, and deceptive and misleading packaging generally.

I attended the 16th annual meeting at which the national president of the association, Mrs. A. F. W. Plumptre, described CAC's newest venture: its long-awaited and much-needed magazine. The first issue of Canadian Consumer makes its appearance June 1, and will be published six times a year.

Canadian Consumer is, of course, a product-testing magazine which should prove invaluable to the careful shopper. The pooled results of scientific laboratory tests, home-use tests, and careful surveys of what's in the market on specific products such as mattresses, washing machines, baby foods, detergents or whatever—will give the family buyer a real chance to compare Brand A with Brand B.

What we're up against, of course, are such things as the weed-killer that was brought to our attention recently. On the container the words "not toxic" were printed boldly—but what it meant was—not toxic to grass!

Annual reports usually make the dreariest reading on earth, but the CAC's is an eye-opener. Here are a few typical consumer complaints the association investigated: four weevils found in two packages of a cake mix... fake contests in which everybody "wins" but has to make a purchase to qualify... 40 per cent spread in prices quoted in city drug stores for filling a prescription for a trade-name drug... poor quality of elastic waistbands in undergarments... poor quality of potatoes sold as Canada No. 1 Grade... poor thread, zippers and sewing standards in ready-made garments... credit cards received through the post unrequested... death of pet cat from exclusive diet of one brand of cat food... dead animal meat sold for human consumption...

Chancellor Fights for Individuality

Dr. Phyllis Ross, chancelaine of Government House for five years and now chancellor of the University of British Columbia, delivered an impressive and erudite warning on the problems of higher education to the annual meeting of the Women's Canadian Club, held in the Empress Hotel.

Speaking to a packed Crystal ballroom yesterday, Dr. Ross said the mission facing higher education in the years that lie ahead was of such proportion that it was better imagined than stated.

"We must provide the kind of education that will fit citizens for the Age of the Atom."

"It will certainly mean a novel kind of sacrifice in creative comforts if we are to finance education at the level it now demands."

Mrs. Ross said that she felt education at the primary and secondary level was as good as systems elsewhere, but the real challenge was in studies beyond high school.

"It becomes clearer day by day that in order to lead a fairly happy and rewarding existence, individuals must be prepared to educate themselves to the highest level of their capacities.

"As procedures and systems become more complex, the problems take on an almost desperate urgency."

She noted Canada was among the foremost countries in exploiting natural resources, but had made no serious attempt to explore human resources. The wastage was enormous in human talent and ability.

"Across Canada there are too few training schools for people who want education peculiar to their needs. These people are not suited to university work, which does not infer inferiority; these people keep the commercial and industrial world moving."

"We require immediately a network of vocational and technological institutions which will offer one or two years training in radio, television, electronics, laboratory techniques, drafting, heavy machinery, auxiliary medical services, aero-mechanics, communications, transportation, traffic control and policing."

Dr. Ross pointed out that through population increase, enrollment at UBC had grown from 2,500 in 1944 to 13,600 in 1963. She forecast that in 1971 there would be 37,000 students seeking education beyond high school in the province.

"Demands for professionally-trained persons in the future will be ceaseless," Dr. Ross warned. "The Atom Age, with its fields of specialization, has an insatiable appetite for new ideas, new systems, and these can only come from men and women who have undergone long and rigorous years of study at universities. Sometimes the period of training may be as long as 10 or 12 years beyond the high school."

"At the same time we need scholars to perpetuate our literary, historical and philosophical traditions, for if human beings are to find pleasure of the spirit and nourishment for the mind, then they must turn their attention to the great truths that are written in poetry, in history and philosophical treatises."

"If we foster selfishness at the expense of the humanities, we may well gain the world, but lose our conscience."

She said that in the past Canadians had not accepted the responsibility for educating those persons who became the great energizing forces in society—"the very few who are able to push back the boundaries of the known and venture into the unexplored realms of knowledge."

Said Dr. Ross, "We sent our most brilliant students elsewhere to be educated—to the U.S.A., to Britain, and abroad. We have not even provided Canadians to teach Canadians, and all our universities are obliged to seek many of their staff members abroad."

She warned that this recruiting would shortly cease because of the universal demand for professors, adding that the "tragic negligence" would make the nation vastly poorer.

"If we are to compete in international education we must become bold experimenters, re-examining teaching methods, course content and acceleration of the gifted. We must be eager to receive new ideas from abroad while maintaining our integrity as a nation."

"All of this must be done if we are to play our part as a nation; indeed it must be done if we are to survive. The sacrifice will touch each citizen directly, for we must be prepared to meet the cost."

Mrs. Ross warned that political systems which proclaimed the supremacy of the state and the subordination of the individual to public rather than private advancement presented a combined force which could submerge the individual and spread the idea of collectivity across the face of the world.

She spoke of the revelation of the atom—"that man had at his command the sun's own energy burst on us in a kind of horrific shock wave"—adding that we were witnesses to vast changes in all the physical and medical sciences.

"Today, we are endowing man with such lavish physical benefits we have tended to destroy in him many of the old virtues of self-discipline, self-reliance and self-esteem. Man is in danger of giving over to resignation, a mood in which he expects the state to provide more benefits with less and less effort from him on his own behalf."

With all this increased leisure, Mrs. Ross said that, far from attempting to extend the creative energy of his mind, man casts about for distractions which constantly threaten contemplation.

"Our desires are manufactured for us in the great mills of the tastemakers."

"Mass communication has a tendency to reduce us to the least common denominator. We are victims of a vast levelling process which denies individuality and forces us to conform into uniform moulds."

"It is for these times, and these trends, that we must plan and elaborate our systems of education, for without a literate populace, true political and social freedom cannot exist."

that Man in the Kitchen

Hors d'oeuvres and canapés are normally served nowadays at cocktail parties, receptions or with drinks before dinner, and very seldom as part of a meal. However, confusion surrounds these terms and has caused many an argument.

Hors d'oeuvres by definition are snacks, usually bite-size or thereabouts, which are additional to the menu and should therefore be light and very delicate, especially when served before a meal consisting of a number of courses. The main function is to stimulate the appetite. Canapés on the other hand can be used as decoration or accompaniment to many dishes, but can also be included in a collection of hors d'oeuvres. Hence the confusion. Briefly, the difference is this—a canapé is a piece of bread, toasted perhaps, or a small pastry, garnished with various compositions, whereas an hors d'oeuvre is a specific item such as a stuffed egg or a small sausage.

Usually we are served a mixture of both, but the tremendous variety of recipes is too frequently overlooked, which is a pity. Many a culinary reputation has been enhanced by an unusual collection of hors d'oeuvres and canapés. So here are a few suggestions which will increase your appetite:

CHEESE BALLS IN CRISPED BEEF

Combine 8 ounces cream cheese, ¼ teaspoon each of dried powdered sage, onion juice and Worcestershire sauce, a few drops of lemon juice and a dash of Tabasco. Chill the mixture for 1 hour. Shape the cheese into marble sized balls and roll them in ¾ ounces finely crumbled beef. Chill before serving.

MUSHROOMS WITH ROQUEFORT

Cream together well ½ pound of Roquefort and sweet butter and blend in 4 tablespoons cognac and ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Clean 12 large mushrooms with a brush and remove the stems. Using a pastry bag fitted with a star tube, pipe the cheese mixture into the mushroom caps. Garnish the centres with thin strips of green pepper. Chill well before serving.

CUCUMBER ROUNDS

Peel cucumbers with a fluted vegetable knife and cut them into inch-thick slices. Remove enough of the seedy centre from each slice to form tiny cups. Using a pastry bag fitted with a small tube, force fluted mounds of softened pate de foie gras, horseradish and olive stuffing, or herb butter into the cucumber cups. Place the cups on pumpernickel rounds. Chill well before serving.

Here are two recipes for use with the cucumber.

HORSERADISH AND OLIVE FILLING

Blend 8 ounces cream cheese with 2 tablespoons each of horseradish and minced black olives.

HERB BUTTER

Blend 1 cup softened butter with 1 shallot, finely minced, 1 tablespoon each of minced parsley, chervil and chives, and ¼ teaspoon salt.

Eggs always play an interesting part in hors d'oeuvres.

SLICED EGGS GARNIE

Slice hard-cooked eggs thinly and put the slices on rounds of Melba toast. Garnish the eggs with curry, mustard, paprika or watercress butter, using a pastry bag fitted with a small flat metal tube. Chill before serving.

Here are the recipes for the garniture:

CURRY BUTTER

Blend ½ cup softened butter with 1 tablespoon curry powder and ½ teaspoon ground ginger.

MUSTARD BUTTER

Combine ½ tablespoon prepared mustard and 1 teaspoon dry mustard with ½ teaspoon lemon juice. Blend the mixture well with ½ cup softened butter.

PAPRIKA BUTTER

Cook together for 5 minutes over low heat 3 tablespoons salted butter, 2 teaspoons finely chopped onion, and 1½ teaspoons paprika. Strain and cool the mixture and blend it well with 3 tablespoons salted butter.

WATERCRESS BUTTER

Blend together ½ cup each of sweet butter and finely chopped watercress leaves. Season the mixture to taste with anchovy paste.

SPICED PEANUTS

Toast shelled and peeled peanuts in a moderate oven (350°) until they are golden brown, shaking the pan occasionally to ensure even toasting. Sprinkle the hot nuts with chili powder and salt. Cool the nuts and shake off the excess seasoning. This recipe can also be used for cashew nuts, almonds or Brazil nuts.

Bon appetit!

Ceiling Demanded On Illinois Relief

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Efforts to end a tie-up of relief funds in Illinois were renewed Wednesday while food was passed out to a growing number of needy families.

Republicans in the legislature are insisting that Governor Otto Kerner, a Democrat, and welfare officials agree to put ceilings on public aid benefits for the two-year period starting July 1.

WON'T APPROVE
Republicans won't approve emergency appropriations for May and June until such an agreement on ceilings is reached.

The governor and welfare officials won't agree, contending the limits suggested by the Republicans are unreasonable.

Republicans control both houses of the legislature.

COME AND GONE
Dates when they normally would have received aid cheques have come and gone for more than 13,000 families in Illinois.

Federal surplus food is being doled out in Chicago and many counties in other parts of the state.

Credit For Reds?

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada is trying to make its first wheat sale on credit to East Germany, sources said Wednesday.

Previous grain purchases by the Communist country have been for cash on a small scale.

The last such wheat sale was for 2,000,000 bushels in 1956.

Negotiations for a credit sale opened recently and it was presumed W. C. McNamara, chief commissioner of the Canadian wheat board, was on them.

He is currently in Europe and due to return to Canada this weekend.

Ear Powers Smallest Hearing Aid

The world's smallest hearing aid, which powers itself through the use of heat from the wearer's ear, is on the market in North America.

The batteryless device of plastic which fits completely into the ear was developed by an Estonian-born scientist. It is powered by a thermo cell which converts heat into electricity, a device used in tiny space satellites.

VICTORIA AGENCY
Agency to sell the Ultima hearing aid here has been obtained by Acousticon of Victoria.

The hearing aid is packed into a sealed plastic case moulded to fit inside the ear. The thermo cell takes heat from the wearer's ear and changes it to electrical energy.

VOLUME CONTROL
Another feature of the Ultima is automatic volume control to avoid sudden, distracting background noises.

The hearing aid is made in Canada by Regal Audio Instruments. President Endel Are developed the aid after working for the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The Mount View High School Choir, under direction of Phil Fawcett, will perform at the regular meeting of the Oak Bay Kiwanis Club at 6:15 p.m. today in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

Jack Lee, Kiwanis district lieutenant-governor, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Victoria, 55 Beaver, at 7:30 a.m. in the Tally-Ho Motel.

C. E. Wesson of the department of national revenue will discuss electronic processing as applied to income tax at a meeting of the Victoria Rotary Club at 12:10 p.m. in the Empress Hotel.

Three Ships Collide

DETROIT (AP) — Three ships — Canadian, American and West German — collided near the mouth of the St. Clair River. None was damaged seriously and no one was injured.

Crash Milk Program Alberta Precaution

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta cabinet Wednesday approved a program of daily monitoring of milk for radioactive contamination and mapped out a crash program to treat milk and remove cattle from contaminated areas if levels reach a point considered dangerous.

"There is no danger now . . . levels are low," an official said.

Parley Set On Dispute Over Ships

OTTAWA (CP) — A top-level meeting to discuss violence against Canadian Great Lakes ships in American ports will be held in Washington next Tuesday, it was announced Wednesday.

The labor department said President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress and President George Meany of the AFL-CIO will meet then with Canadian Labor Minister Allan J. MacEachen and U.S. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz.

PRELIMINARY TALK
The announcement said Mr. Wirtz will visit Ottawa Friday for a preliminary meeting with Mr. MacEachen.

Main point of the talks will be a discussion of the harassment of Canadian ships by U.S. allies of the Seafarers International Union of Canada.

At last week's meeting of Prime Minister Pearson and President Kennedy at Hyannis Port, Mass., it was agreed efforts would be made to bring together the heads of the two big labor congresses in Canada and the U.S.

Smoking for Ham, Says Non-Smoker

Smoke is for fish, ham and bacon, "but not for you," according to secretary Robert Ludwig of the Non-Smokers' Association of Canada.

Mr. Ludwig addressed a conference of P.T.A. church and health representatives in the Saanich Health Centre yesterday.

SHORTENS LIFE
B.C. Health Minister Eric Martin told the group that smoking shortens life and creates disease hazards.

The three-year-old organization now boasts 600 members and aims to hold non-smoking seminars throughout Canada and the U.S.

A pamphlet outlining the dangers of smoking has been prepared for circulation in high schools.

$3,000 GET CANCER
Mr. Martin, who is a senior member of the organization, told the conference that lung cancer claimed 38,000 victims a year.

Mr. Ludwig said a crest was being prepared to transform smoking addicts into non-smoking addicts. "Fumus Pro Carpius" the legend will read. It means "Smoking is for suckers."

Americans Nearest Bomarcs

OTTAWA (CP) — American military personnel will mount a close guard on U.S. nuclear warheads stored on Canadian bases, Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday.

The bases will have a so-called "outside security" guard of Canadian troops, he added.

He emphasized that the American personnel will be small in numbers. "I wouldn't like to say troops, because troops gives the impression of formations."

Mr. Pearson made the statement at the luncheon break of a day-long cabinet meeting on the eve of today's ceremonial opening of the 28th Parliament.

In other comments, Mr. Pearson said:

1. The government is worried about "the very grave possible deterioration" of the Haitian situation and the number of Canadians — mostly missionaries — still there.

2. The government is currently studying the best procedures in negotiations with British Columbia and the United States on revision of the Columbia River treaty.

3. Letters are being mailed to provincial governments suggesting plans for the federal government's royal commission inquiry into bilingualism and biculturalism.

Mr. Pearson said negotiations have not yet started between Canadian and American officials on the political agreement between the two countries which must precede Canadian acquisition of nuclear warheads for bases. He said that under the U.S. agreements with jet interceptors, and F-104 NATO countries, including the United Kingdom, the warheads remain in the custody of the American "troops" guarding United States.

Royal Holiday Loss Irks Quebec Staff

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—Quebec will be the only province to ignore the official birthday of Queen Elizabeth this year and this brought a protest from employees of the provincial administration Wednesday.

J. L. Descoeurs, president of the General Council of the Civil Service, sent a letter of protest to Premier Lesage about cancellation of holidays next Monday.

Gift to Canada and U.S.

Prime Minister Pearson and President Kennedy have accepted with "deep appreciation" jointly for Canada and the U.S. the gift of Franklin D. Roosevelt's Campobello estate which lies between the two nations. Photos show house and docking facilities. Estate was bought in 1952 by Armand Hammer of California from Roosevelt's son Elliott.

Trans-Atlantic

Air Fare Law Sought by U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Civil Aeronautics Board Wednesday held the two U.S. trans-Atlantic airlines to open further overseas fare increases and asked Congress for new powers to bring them down.

Alan Boyd, CAB chairman, made the bid amid congressional grumbling that the U.S. had backed down in its fight to buck a five per cent increase in trans-Atlantic fares pushed through by European airlines.

Montreal Kierans

Closer Ties Seen For B.C., Quebec

VANCOUVER (CP)—Eric Kierans, president of the Montreal Stock Exchange, predicted closer ties between B.C. and Quebec will develop out of a common desire for freer trade and protection of provincial rights.

And he sees the alignment having as its common enemies the federal government and protectionist Ontario.

Mr. Kierans, here with other governors of the stock exchange for a board meeting said Wednesday both Quebec and B.C. are determined to control their own rates of growth and to control unemployment within their boundaries.

He said both B.C. and Quebec would benefit from freer trade. B.C. would look more to the Orient for trade, while Quebec would look to Europe.

"Both of us are hampered by the tariff protective policy which is a benefit to Ontario," he said. "Through tariffs,

Northwest IWA Backs Strike

PORTLAND (AP)—West coast members of the IWA have voted to give their contract negotiating committee authority to call a strike.

Harvey Nelson, western regional president, said Wednesday the vote was 15,684 to 2,147. He said 80 per cent of members covered by west coast negotiations cast ballots.

The vote authorized the negotiating committee to call a strike if necessary to back demands for a 40-cent-an-hour pay increase over a three-year period, plus other contract benefits.

The board meeting was the first ever held outside Quebec. Emphasis was on securing closer relations with the Vancouver exchange which might lead to co-operative development of investment markets. There was no talk of a merger.

Flood-Safe Housing Hay River Proposal

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP)—Plans for a flood-safe residential subdivision in Hay River were under study by the department of public works with Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation personnel acting as consultants. It was announced Wednesday.

In a prepared report for the council of the Northwest Territories, which met in this settlement 500 miles north of Edmonton Wednesday, the department said the study had started.

CHMC officials had arrived in Hay River to assess problems and prepare initial plans for the layout of the proposed development.

The tentative site for the subdivision was on the mainland, south of the West Channel crossing and about two miles from the existing town on Vale Island. The town is a distribution and fishing centre.

The report added that the study would attempt to determine whether relocation of the town was desirable, the alternatives available and the costs involved.

Methods of assistance that would be employed would be similar to those used by provincial governments after floods in Winnipeg and Saint John, N.B.

Bank Advocated To Aid West

LONDON (UPI)—Labor Party leader Harold Wilson urged Wednesday that the International Monetary Fund be turned into a central bank for the western world.

Only in this way, Wilson told the American Chamber of Commerce in London, could western nations defeat the perennial balance of payments crises that beset their attempts to expand.

This bank, Wilson said, should have power to channel large amounts of money to nations which need funds to use their resources to the full.

Expansion Plans Disclosed by Y

Greater Victoria's new YM-YWCA building will have several temporary features which will be built up as more money rolls in, a luncheon meeting was told Wednesday by the Y's consulting architect.

John Van Disa of the National Y architect consulting service told the meeting there were plans for two swimming pools, one for regular swimming and one for training.

Plans called for a large 25-metre pool to be built as the new building is constructed. A small 30 by 30 foot instruction pool can be built later when funds become available, he said.

Original plans called for a big pool but after a number of meetings the building committee decided on building a medium-sized pool, then later a small pool. Present plans call for the 30 by 30 foot space to be made into an outdoor patio.

Mr. Van Disa pointed out attempts had been made to utilize every inch of the new building's space.

The gymnasium can be used as a full room or divided in half with a portable partition to allow two groups to use the facilities.

Included in the building will be a coffee shop capable of seating 24 at counter space and 32 at tables.

A parking area off Broughton Street will provide space for 41 cars.

Mr. Van Disa said the area would be liberally covered with shrubs. "We want to leave plenty of planting space to soften the parking area."

Conviction Ironie Magistrate Agrees

Two young men who appeared on their way to rehabilitation after previous convictions were sentenced to prison terms of two years each in Saanich magistrate's court Wednesday.

Trevor Midgley, 1924 Belmont, and James Robert Russell, 2605 Forbes, were charged with breaking and entering Victoria University's Gordon Head campus cafeteria April 13.

Previous offences, involving possession of stolen goods, theft and breaking and entering, were read into the record once the verdict was reached by Magistrate William Ouellet.

Both Russell, 23, and Midgley, 20, had been convicted of offences ranging back to 1958. Before sentence was passed defence counsel David Hummel pointed out previous offences committed by the boys had taken place when they were out of work.

Both OBTAINED

"It seems rather ironic—both have obtained employment," Mr. Hummel said.

Magistrate Ouellet agreed and said both young men seemed well on their way to rehabilitation.

During the trial Tuesday, Saanich police Cpl. Frank Briers told the court he checked a car containing Russell and Midgley near the Gordon Head campus at 2 a.m. April 13. The car was seen again near the campus by Cpl. Briers 10 minutes before the break-in was reported at 2:25.

Minutes after

Crown prosecutor for the trial was Kenneth Murphy.

A county court judge upheld a ruling dismissing a charge of careless driving against a Victoria driver.

Charles Hodgson, 1389 Victoria, was charged in connection with the death of Mrs. Jane Ellen Bunker, 77, of 1140 Pandora. The pedestrian died instantly when struck by a car at Pandora and Chambers Dec. 4.

The charge against the motorist was dismissed by Magistrate William Ouellet Feb. 21 in city magistrate's court.

Mindszenty Pact Reached

BUDAPEST (AP) — Informants said Wednesday night an agreement has been reached that will allow Josef Cardinal Mindszenty to leave Hungary for Rome at any time. There was a stir in Rome during the evening over an apparently false report that the cardinal was arriving there.

But the duty officer at the U.S. legation in Budapest said at midnight: "He is still in the legation building."

The inspectors were given widespread powers to examine all documents of state, economic and other organizations, determine the responsibility for economic failures and recommend the firing of factory and farm managers.

The West Berlin newspaper Der Abend described the inspectors as a "new secret police."

Garden Notes

Remaking the Beds

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

One of the important jobs to be tackled along about this time of the year is the clearing out of the spring-flowering plants in the flower beds, replacing them with summer-blooming annuals. It requires a well-developed sense of timing to decide just the best time to get cracking on this operation, for if you clear the beds too soon, you fail to collect full dividends from your tulips or wallflowers. If you leave it too late, your nurseryman or plant dealer may be sold out of the particular bedding plants you want.

What do you do with the old plants removed from the beds? It depends on what kind of plants you grow. English and Siberian wallflowers are seldom worth keeping, and as they are cabbage-relatives and therefore capable of perpetuating the dreaded club root disease, I figure the best place for them is on the garden bonfire.

Tulips and daffs pose the biggest problem. Ideally, these plants should really be allowed to stay where they are undisturbed to ripen their foliage and plump up their bulbs for next year's display, and the topgrowth shouldn't be cut down or the bulbs taken up and stored until the leaves have died down naturally. This may take a month or more yet.

One solution is to leave the bulbs where they are to complete their growth, and interplant with tallish annuals in such a way that the new plants conceal the untidy dying foliage.

age of the bulbs. This works well if done on only occasional years, but it gives you no opportunity to dig over and enrich the bed. The bulbs, too, will deteriorate gradually unless taken up at least every third year to be dried and stored and stored for summer.

Probably the best method is to take up the bulbs in full growth with a good ball of soil around their roots and transplant them carefully to a row in the backyard to complete their growth. The garden books call this "healing in," which to me has the connotation of chucking the bulbs carelessly into a furrow and kicking some dirt in over the roots. Such offhand treatment will cause your daffs and tulips to die down much earlier than they should, before their growth cycle is completed; instead, transplant as carefully as if you were handling a delphinium or a phlox.

If you have grown forget-me-nots as a filler between your tulips or wallflowers, when you pull them up, don't chuck them on the compost heap. Instead, scatter the uprooted plants on a nicely loose bit of ground in the shade of one of your shrubs. The forget-me-not has the happy faculty of ripening and shedding its seeds even after being pulled up, and by late summer you will have hundreds of little self-sown seedlings springing up, ready for transplanting. Polyanthus primroses are good for another display next spring, but they need a period of rest and recuperation after the strain of flowering, and they need to get out of strong sunshine for the summer months. These should be lifted carefully from their sunny flowering quarters, taking a substantial ball of earth around their roots, and transplanted into a shady bed. This shouldn't be a gloomy kind of shade, as from low, overhanging tree branches, but either an open position on the north side of a wall or in a woodland glade dappled with spots of sunshine filtering through the leaves of the trees. The soil should be moist and woody, rich in leaf-mould.

With a mixed bag of polyanthus plants, it pays to be a bit fussy as to which plants are saved and which are given the old heave-ho over the back fence. Out of any given batch of seedlings, there should be a proportion of exceptionally fine plants, with big flowers and glowing, rich colors. By the same token, there is bound to be a certain amount of sheer junk—plants which aren't fit even to be given away to the neighbors—with harsh or wishy-washy colors.

These poor relations are best consigned to the compost heap. The good-enough types are planted out in their summer rest camp, watering them in carefully with a little Transplantone or vitamin B1 in the water. Any real super-doopers among your polyanthus may be pulled apart first into individual crowns, thereby giving a higher proportion of first-class plants in next spring's display.

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — They laughed when Walter Wanger said that Cleopatra would make $100,000,000. "But I was right," Walter told me, when I bumped into him on the street. "With about $20,000,000 in the kitty already. Kansas City has just paid $200,000 in advance for the picture," said Walter. He added with conviction, "it will be the greatest money-maker of all time."

Red Hatten's fiancée, Alicia Pagan was saying that their marriage date is Jan. 2. Seems Red's divorce won't be final until then... and Tina Louise has been dating Bob Fosse. New York dress designer.

I asked Cesar Romero's best girl Elizabeth Allen, "will you and Cesar be getting married?" "Not a chance," she replied. "There's too big an age difference." "How much?" I wanted to know. "Twenty-seven years," replied Elizabeth. It might not be too much if Cesar were the marrying kind.

Apparently nothing can hurt a movie career. And I'm thinking of Carol Burnett's marriage to Joe Hamilton with his eight children by his previous wife. How can a man leave a woman who has borne him eight children? All those mouths to feed. Lucky for him that Carol is self supporting. She has a big mouth.

Lord Snowdon took the candid at the London premiere of 55 Days in Peking. I see where a London reporter reported that in the film, Ava Gardner was looking her age. She does. But something new has been added. More character, more depth, less glamor and less make-up. But I like this new Ava. She seems more interesting.

Are the Charlie Chaplins about to make some head-lines? And I don't mean another baby.

The Class Structure

Upper-Uppers Lower-Lowers

By RUDOLF FLEISCH

Yankee City is the title of a famous sociological classic—a series of books that dissect and analyzes the class structure of a whole town. It was begun some 30 years ago by a team of sociologists headed by Prof. W. Lloyd Warner and slowly grew into five fat volumes. Now, Yale University Press has issued a one-volume paperback abridgment. The scientists found that Yankee City contained six classes of people—upper-upper, lower-upper, upper-middle, lower-middle, upper-lower and lower-lower. I thought you might be interested in how the upper-uppers live.

The upper-uppers are rich (although not quite as rich as the lower-uppers). They "spend a higher percentage of their money on clothing, taxes, gifts, charity and traveling for business purposes than any other class."

They're white Protestant Americans and "rarely associate with persons of other ethnic stocks."

The clubs they belong to are so exclusive that "most of the lower classes do not even know of their existence."

Their children don't attend the local high school but are sent to prep schools "where they not only prepare for college but also acquire the etiquette and attributes of their group."

None of their teenage children are gainfully employed. Their homes contain from eight to 20 or more rooms. Often there are two living rooms, one for the family and the other for entertaining guests. The dining room is rarely used for larger functions except for formal dinners. . . . The upper-class, family spends more time over its breakfast than families in other classes. "Servants perform a large part of the household ritual. The mistress of the house superintends the activities of her servants, but does not herself do any of the actual work."

"However, she and other members of the family perform acts which top off the work of their paid employees: arranging flowers, carving at the table, lighting the fire and pouring at tea. "Maids serve at the table according to a strictly formalized routine, while the food is prepared by a cook hired especially for that work. Maids are outfitted in uniforms of different types according to the time of day and the specific duties in which they are engaged, their dress symbolizing their subordination to and separation from the family they serve."

"The leisure time accruing to the family that can maintain servants allows more frequent performance of ritual acts outside the home—the women participating in various social activities which bring them conspicuously to the attention of the remainder of the community, and the men indulging in a variety of sports, intellectual interests and hobbies and community activities by means of which they express and constantly reaffirm their social position."

SPCA Fund Drive 'Off to Fine Start'

Victoria SPCA fund-raising drive—which began Monday—is off to "a very fine start," manager David Beeching said last night.

"We've collected over $300 already," he said, "and the requests for donations didn't hit the mail until yesterday morning."

Objective is $35,000 for the new animal shelter to be built at Burnside and Napier. Construction is to start Aug. 1. The campaign will last six weeks.

"We have the official approval of Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich councils on the drive," Mr. Beeching said.

Present facilities, built in 1948, are inadequate due to lack of space and sewage difficulties.

Carey Road Home Gets Equipment

Play equipment will be donated to Carey Road Children's Group Home by two Victoria organizations, vice-president W. T. Lawson of the Association for Emotionally Disturbed Children said yesterday.

A $100 cheque has been received from Associated Commercial Travellers.

CARPENTERS HELP
 Materials will be purchased with part of the money and volunteers from the Carpenters' Union will build the play equipment.

Speaker at the association's recent meeting was Dr. W. G. Wallis, who recently opened an office in Victoria.

Clubs Fight Crackdown In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Night club owners have scheduled an emergency meeting today to discuss the city's decision not to renew permits of 18 night clubs on the grounds they are "anti-social spots."

The 18 clubs involved are located on the Main, a notorious night club district in downtown Montreal. Their permits expire at the end of this month.

Police Director J. Adrien Robit said the offending clubs had all been given ample warning to make certain improvements. None had complied.

He mentioned soliciting, fights, thefts, and other disorders as things the police wanted stopped.

"We can't have places such as this operating in 1967, when thousands of visitors will be coming to the city," he said.

The Montreal world's fair will be staged in 1967.

Throne Speech

Liberals Unveil Today

OTTAWA (CP) — A program to accelerate Canada's economic growth will be spelled out today as the new Liberal government meets the 26th Parliament for the first time.

Plot Courses For Session—P. 18

Worried Says Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government is very concerned with the possibility of deterioration of the situation in Haiti where there is a large number of Canadian missionaries, Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday.

He said a cabinet meeting today received a report on the situation.

He recalled the Canadian government has called attention of Canadians on the island to the possible dangers.

Emphatically

Duvalier Stays In Haiti

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — President Francois Duvalier gathered a score of U.S. correspondents in his ornate white palace Wednesday and told them emphatically: "Haiti will continue under my administration."

As followers of the 56-year-old strongman set up a din of air-ens, horns and bugles outside, Duvalier appealed for better relations with the United States.

The appearance of the grey-haired Duvalier surrounded by his cabinet ministers seemed intended to dispel reports that he was getting ready to flee in the climax of a crisis over his continued rule.

MARKED MAN
Duvalier's constitutional term of office expired Wednesday but he declared himself re-elected for six more years after a rigged election two years ago. His enemies have marked him for assassination.

(In New York, the Haitian consulate cancelled four reservations on a Pan American World Airways flight to Paris that were believed intended for Duvalier and his family. The reservations had been made by telephone Sunday night by an unknown caller, and he presumably was to have reached New York by way of Curacao, in the Dutch West Indies.)

DID THE SAME
Claiming Haiti is calm and peaceful, Duvalier accused the United States of "an ill-considered attempt to create panic" by its orders to U.S. dependents to get out of the country last week. Canada did the same.

Duvalier said foreigners of all nationalities will "continue to enjoy . . . all guarantees for their safety under the protection of the law."

Crisis Meeting Set By Sacred Chiefs

OTTAWA (CP) — The struggle within the ranks of the Social Credit party will be placed before a special national council meeting of the party, a reliable informant said Wednesday night.

A call for the special session has gone out from party leader Robert Thompson following the resignation of Dr. Guy Marcoux, MP for Quebec-Montmorency.

ISSUE OF RIX

Dr. Marcoux quit the party's Quebec wing last weekend and resigned as party whip in the Commons. He has said he considers the caucus of Social Credit MPs dealt too lightly with six MPs who signed a statement after the April 8 election promising support for a Liberal government.

The six men later repudiated the statement and Mr. Thompson has said three were disciplined by the caucus. Dr.

Marcoux said he quit the Quebec wing because three of the MPs still are executive officers of it.

Mr. Thompson has requested National President Martin Kell of Regina to call the national council into session in the third week of June. Under the organization's constitution 30 days notice of a special session are required.

PARTY SHOWING

Two main subjects are expected to be placed before the council which is made up of the 13-member executive plus one representative from each provincial organization affiliated with the national organization. The whole question of Dr. Marcoux' resignation is one subject to be discussed. The other is the problem of the party as a result of its showing in the April 8 election in which Social Credit strength in the Commons was cut to 23 members from 30.

Cooper

Monitors Hushed; Landing Late Today

Reaches Half-Way Before Midnight

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—Gordon Cooper passed the half-way point in his 22-orbital flight around the globe at 11:15 p.m. PDT Wednesday. At that point, in his 12th orbit, Cooper was over the South Pacific approaching the west coast of South America and apparently still asleep in his spacecraft.

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP)—Astronaut Gordon Cooper shattered the U.S. record for cosmic travel Wednesday night, then calmly began an eight-hour rest period during which he hoped to sleep.

All earth-bound monitors were cautioned to remain silent while Cooper took his space siesta as he spun on and on in his marathon flight. If he overslept, an electronic alarm clock, triggered from the earth, was to wake him up.

The record period started during the ninth of Cooper's scheduled 22 orbits. It began over the southeast Pacific as Cooper's Faith 7 spacecraft was approaching the west coast of Chile.

Told to Go for 17

Five minutes later, heart beat and respiration signals received at a tracking post on Ascension Island in the South Atlantic indicated he had gone to sleep or was close to it.

Two orbits earlier, the seventh—which was a "go" or "no go" point in the astronautical log book—he was doing so well officials told him to try for at least 17 orbits.

Zippling along at nearly five miles a second more than 100 miles above the earth, Cooper broke the U.S. mark established by astronaut Walter Schirra, who did six orbits of the world last October.

Everything pointed to a remarkably successful flight. As he settled down for a night of rest, Cooper reported he was in excellent condition. Faith 7 was in equally good shape.

HAS ENOUGH FUEL
At the time, he had 80 per cent fuel remaining in the automatic capsule control system and 31 per cent in the manual system. The flight plan called for him to have at least 50 and 65 per cent, respectively, remaining in each tank for the critical re-entry manoeuvre during the 22nd orbit.

Cooper and ground trackers threw around such words as "excellent," "beautiful," and "perfect" in describing the flight.

The astronaut had many chores as he swept round and round the globe. Included was the releasing of a small satellite which followed him in orbit, sending out a flashing light that he observed in a space-distance judging test.

Tension Builds In Mid-Pacific

ABOARD THE USS KEARSARGE (UPI)—The Kearsarge is sweating it out. The prayers have been said, the preparations made and the plans scrutinized for the thousandth time today as this 17-year-old carrier moves slowly through the white-capped Pacific for her rendezvous with astronaut Gordon Cooper.

Each hour and each orbit brings Faith 7 closer to that predetermined spot southeast of Midway Island. There the one-ton spacecraft and the 40,000-ton carrier are due to meet—one now whipping through space at 17,500 miles an hour and the other idling through the seas at 10 knots.

On the surface it is "business as usual" aboard the Kearsarge except at the ship's stores, which report a fire sale in film and cameras as the just-paid crew load up on photo equipment to record the historic event.

Today is no different from any other day aboard this ship except for the unmeasurable intangible called tension that has been steadily building up with each successful Cooper orbit.

Marines drill on the hangar deck, mechanics tinker with the helicopters and stored planes, the paint brushes are out and the routine duties are being performed that go on daily aboard a carrier.

For the next hours the tension will continue, building up until that final orbit when Faith 7 is due to come plummeting out of space and Task Force 130 takes on the job of finding Cooper and bringing him safely home.

Alabama Seeking Legal Showdown

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Alabama's segregationist governor said Wednesday he will file suit challenging President Kennedy's right to send federal troops into Birmingham to settle racial troubles.

"This military dictatorship must be nipped in the bud," said Governor George C. Wallace in a Montgomery press conference. He said the federal court suit was in preparation but would not say when or where it would be filed.

POSSIBLE LINE

Kennedy has sent approximately 3,000 soldiers to two military bases in Alabama.

The legal showdown between Kennedy and Wallace shaped up while downtown Birmingham merchants expressed fears of an economic disaster for this industrial city of 340,000 because of a reported white boycott.

STAYING OUT

White shoppers obviously were staying out of downtown stores.

But Negroes returned to stores in increasing numbers and an integration leader indicated their long-standing boycott, protesting segregation, was ending as the result of a desegregation agreement with businessmen.

Alabama's Supreme Court ruled that integration leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and 10 other Negro ministers could remain free pending review of their appeal of court contempt convictions. They were sentenced in circuit court here April 26 for defying an injunction against demonstrations.

'Barbaric'

"Barbaric and intolerable" racial situation exists in southern United States, African high school boys have been told in a speech by Laurence Vass, U.S. consul-general in Nairobi, Kenya. (AP Photofax.)

Poison Pens Busy In Canada

TORONTO (CP) — An organizer for a group raising funds for U.S. Negro integration leader Martin Luther King said Wednesday night the group has received a number of hate letters and telephone calls.

Milton Cadsby, a lawyer and chairman of the social action committee of Holy Blossom Temple, said a handful of the 400 letters received by the fund since it was started Saturday were of the poison pen variety.

One letter called "Negroes beasts and animals." The fund raisers, who include prominent Torontonians, were called "filthy, dirt stinking Communists."

Village Will Interview Foes of Incorporation

CAMPBELL RIVER — Village commission chairman R. D. Jamieson and village clerk Shelly Knowles will approach all residents who had been previously opposed to an incorporation of the hospital and Cedar Street elementary school into the village.

A plebiscite will be necessary to settle the question of incorporation. Date will be set after the proposed interviews have been completed. Birch Street residents, opposed to the incorporation, had refused to consent to the request by hospital and school and commissioners were unable to obtain the required 60 per cent majority in favor.

Green Light
CAMPBELL RIVER — A project to build 75 homes, a small shopping area and multiple dwellings was given the green light last night as village commissioners approved the application of L. J. Martin to incorporate an area at First Avenue and Island Highway. RCMP barracks will be built near the proposed development.

Pensioners Want Fast Action

NANAIMO — Action on the conversion of the old Nanaimo hospital to a chronic care institution is being demanded by the Nanaimo Old Age Pensioners' Association.

President Joe Sutton said Wednesday questions about the promised chronic institution are not being answered by the hospital board. He said the board always replies it is waiting for word from Victoria.

"Meanwhile the place just sits there all boarded up," said Mr. Sutton.

He plans to call a public meeting.

Oyster Leases Topic

COURTENAY — Applications for oyster leases at Royston will be discussed at the Chamber of Commerce executive meeting Thursday night.

Randy Klaver, resort operator at Royston and Chamber director, will bring up the matter.

North Star Oyster Company at Panny Bay, which has applied for lease of two parcels — 35 acres and 14 acres more than a quarter of a mile offshore from Royston which has a residential settlement on the beach front — feels there is no cause for alarm.

The leases are well offshore, and after the area has been seeded the oysters will be harvested and there will be no spread of the shell fish to bother people in the area.

Pythians Parley Opens

COURTENAY — More than 150 delegates registered yesterday as the Pythians B.C. convention opened here.

The day was spent in relaxation and tours ending with a clamdigger social in the evening.

Today business sessions will start with reports and a meeting of the cerebral palsy committee. Officers for knights and sisters will be held Friday morning, with installation in the afternoon.

Highlight of Thursday's sessions is the public speaking contest at night and the drill competitions for the Stella Matson trophy.

Permit 'Must' For Parents

If parents in the vicinity of the Jingle Pot Road-Island Highway intersection near Nanaimo decide to build their own pedestrian overpass, they can expect a cool reception from the highways department.

Parents at a recent meeting discussed a do-it-yourself overpass as one solution to what they consider is a serious traffic hazard for students who must cross the highway.

A highways official indicated Wednesday that for private citizens there is more to building an overpass than simply calling the carpenters.

The hitch is a wordy document called the B.C. Highways Act. It forbids people from putting structures on, over or under highways without a permit. The permit must come from the highways department—and the highways department has some fairly inflexible views on how such structures should be built.

Parents in the Jingle Pot Road area have sought an overpass for some time, but the campaign gained new impetus last February when a six-year-old boy was struck and killed there.

NEW MEASURES

The highways department has said an overpass is not justified, but it did install new safety measures at the intersection following the death.

Parents are not satisfied with the new measures and have discussed raising $5,000 to $6,000 to put up an overpass.

SPECIFICATIONS

The highways official said that, even if the department consented to having the structure paid for by the parents, it would have to comply with departmental specifications.

This would mean a total cost of approximately $15,000.

Thieves Hungry

NANAIMO — A wedding ring and an air pistol were among articles stolen from the home of Mrs. Mavis MacDonald by thieves in day-light.

Mrs. MacDonald reported the house was entered sometime Tuesday when she was out. The thieves entered by an unlocked rear door and passed long enough for a snack from the kitchen.

Hovercraft Ferries 'Ten Years Away'

If Vancouver Islanders want to ride 75 miles an hour on a B.C. government hovercraft ferry, they will have to wait about 10 years.

That is the opinion of government ferry service manager Monty Aldous on his return from a demonstration ride in a hovercraft at Montreal.

He believes it will take the manufacturing company at least that long to produce a hovercraft large enough to merit consideration for mass transportation of passengers and vehicles.

Mr. Aldous said the model he rode in travelled 75 miles an hour and didn't even need seat belts.

"It was the smoothest transportation I have ever been in."

The hovercraft rides over land or water on a cushion of air generated by powerful engines using downward thrust propellers. Its forward motion comes from conventional propellers.

The ferry service manager said the largest model currently under construction will carry 120 passengers. But the addition of three ordinary automobiles would cut the human load to 32.

Long-range planning calls for a craft capable of simultaneously carrying 40 vehicles and 600 passengers.

Dobson Discloses Plans

Time Ripe in Duncan For Town Planning

DUNCAN—Public Works Minister Chant wants a site for a new government building here within two weeks and city council's advisory planning committee will bring in recommendations on planned city face-lifting. Mayor Jack Dobson has told a public meeting attended by 50 people.

Mayor Dobson said Mr. Chant aired his intention at a recent visit to city hall.

Mayor Dobson outlined the city's plans for the future and, referring to the past, said Duncan has always had able administrators, and utility services have been improved steadily.

"Perhaps we could have done better but at least we tried and now I feel the time is ripe for a planned city program," he said.

He said the new advisory committee includes J. L. Whitton, chairman; W. M. Hudson, J. J. Kerrone, H. G. Neal, R. D. Howard and three ex-officio members, Gordon Berry, chief administrative officer; Russell Potter, consulting engineer of the city, and Hugh Henderson, city solicitor.

Never Too Late

Mr. Potter said: "The main principle of town planning is not to build a new town but to preserve the town we have and to reshape the town we used to have. It might be late, but it is never too late."

He said the city is unique in its character and its attractiveness and character should be established and emphasized.

"Many of the things I say may sound pessimistic but my favorite definition of a pessimist is a person who sees things just as they are."

Mr. Potter feels the city has lost its downtown charm during the past 20 years, and the new glamour combined with many advantages to shoppers of new supermarkets and the shopping plaza is a serious threat to the downtown area.

"A poor downtown area is a symbol or image for a city and a depressed downtown area is cancerous — it almost invariably expands in all directions."

Underlining the city's natural attractiveness, the engineer referred to the moderate climate, the great forest and agricultural potentials surrounding Duncan and many beauty spots in the Cowichan Valley.

This Area Vital

He said so far little has been done to exploit and improve the "sporty" Cowichan River.

Mr. Potter stressed the importance of a mutual understanding between the Cowichan Indian band and the city.

He said: "This area is vital to the development of the city and it is vital to the development of the band. What we want to do is quite obvious: we want to create a downtown area in Duncan so attractive and convenient that business and especially shopping plazas will not be tempted to build up outside the city."

He urged an immediate start and then plans for the whole city and, in co-operation with the district and the province, a start on the river, the seashore, the hills and the forests to make them more usable, drawing more people into this area and particularly to Duncan.

Mr. Potter's idea calls for a new civic centre with sufficient parking and sweeping lawns, removal of poles in the downtown section, and improved lighting.

Worked Together

He said: "We will begin by having a development plan for the city and detailed building by building and lot-by-lot plans for the business area, worked out by the planners and the businessmen together."

"We want to make Duncan the most attractive spot in the province."

Asked from the floor if the city has made any decision to remove some of the old buildings which have served out their purpose, Mayor Dobson replied: "We want to bring no suffering to anyone, but with new plans such buildings either have to go or be brought up to standard."

He added a lot of people from Victoria come here to shop in a leisurely manner in "our friendly stores."

"Our little city can be made very attractive," the mayor said.

Planning committee chairman Mr. Whitton said his group has the important job of directing the professional planning in the right direction so "it will fit our specific situation."

Band Concert Planned Sunday

The Edmonds, Wash., high school band will give a concert in Willows Park, Oak Bay, at 3 p.m. Sunday, weather permitting.

The band is one of a number coming to Victoria for Victoria Day weekend celebrations.

Bottle Drive

The 6th Douglas St. Columbia Club and Scouts will hold a bottle drive in the Burnside West area starting at 8:30 p.m. today.

NORTH COWICHAN—Two pensioner groups in the district will be advised council will throw its moral support to their efforts to have the hospital board retain King's Daughters' Hospital when the new $3,250 Cowichan hospital is built.

The pensioners want to retain the hospital as a clinic for chronic cases and a resting and boarding home for the elderly on a non-profit basis.

SPECIFIC NEEDS

They oppose private similar institutions because of the "profit motive" involved. Hospital board chairman Claude Green yesterday told council the buildings could be altered for the specific needs. He said the money for that purpose would have to be approved by the taxpayers.

Mr. Green, accompanied by hospital administrator Ken Noton, reminded council he only could express his personal views and not those of the board at the moment.

He said the buildings belong to the community, and the board will make recommendations following a detailed study.

MOST PREFER

Mr. Noton said there should be plans for chronic cases and facilities for the infirm elderly as most people prefer to go to a high-quality public nursing home.

Either the present hospital board or a separate board could run the new centre, he said.

Reeve Donald Morton said if private people would want to establish a private similar institution "it would be quite wrong to prevent them during the interval until the new hospital is ready."

NO INTENTION

G. Bergman, Gibbins Road, was assured council has no intention of amending the by-law concerning single-family dwellings. At a recent council meeting a petition from Gibbins Road residents asked for amendment of that by-law to prevent a private hospital there.

Council would like to see an organization spearhead a drive for life guards at Maple Bay, Crofton Beach and Furlers Lake.

FINANCIAL AID

Council will assist financially. At the Chemainus Kinmen Park, Kinmen arrange for life guards.

The North Cowichan sports committee was authorized to use $800 to clear up the eastern half of the playing field at the Maple Bay school.

DUNCAN — Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce appointed new committees yesterday. (Chairmen are: Ed Good, (financial); Bert Dodd, publicity; Bill Jaynes, membership; Herb Doman, roads and highways; Ike Barber, sports, recreation and parks; Will Dobson, national and provincial affairs; Norma Gourlay and Jim Jardine, retail; Al Vanacker, new industry and development; George Haskins and Gordon Rutherford, tourism, and Bob Howard, civic affairs.)

Ladysmith Gets Federal Centre

OTTAWA — Public Works Minister Jean Paul Deschamps Wednesday announced the award of a $85,920 contract to Burak Construction Limited of Duncan for the construction of a federal building at Ladysmith.

The firm submitted the lowest bid of seven in response to advertising for public tenders which closed April 17. Highest bid was $93,660. The work is scheduled for completion in nine months.

ONE STOREY

The new building a one-storey structure measuring 85 by 45 feet, will be erected at High Street and First Avenue.

It will have a basement for the department of fisheries. The ground floor will be occupied by the post office, and access to both departments will be from street level.

The basement floor and walls will be of reinforced concrete with wood frame and brick veneer walls above.

NIGHT LOBBY

The post office consists of a night lobby, containing mail boxes, and a public lobby with a counter and service windows. The work area is served by a loading dock and truck yard at the rear of the building. Parking space, reached from First Avenue, will be provided.

Alberni District Coop

Flames Hit Large Store

ALBERNI — No estimate has been made of the damage from a fire in Alberni District Co-Op store on Merrifield Road Wednesday.

Alberni volunteer fire department fought the blaze which broke out in a second-storey hay storage room. Hay, feed and fertilizer were destroyed but flames were confined to one end of the upper floor of the large general store.

Budgies, in a garden shop attached to the store were removed to save them from the effects of rancid smoke as the fertilizer and feed burned.

Bob Ashby, manager of the store, is also assistant chief of the fire department. Cause of the fire is not known.

Sarsiat Leaving Nanaimo Post

NANAIMO—Staff Sgt. Earl Sarsiat, head of the RCMP detachment here for more than three years, will be transferred to head the Prince George detachment in June.

Sgt. Sarsiat transferred to the RCMP when the federal force took over the B.C. provincial police. He has been a policeman for more than 25 years.

The transfer is slated for June 1 but an RCMP spokesman said Sgt. Sarsiat will not leave for his new post until the end of June.

Taking Sgt. Sarsiat's place will be Staff Sgt. Frank Slater, who has been working out of Nanaimo for several months.

Flett Farm Nearly Century Old

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN—When John Flett took possession of his Cowichan Valley farm on Herd Road in 1870, he had almost the same sweeping view across the trench toward Maple Bay as his two grandsons, Ernest and Wallace Flett, who 93 years later still operate the farm.

To the east, Mount Maxwell on Salt Spring Island shows its characteristic ridge. To the northeast the more modest Shale Mountain rises, and Mount Tsoobalem commands the southern limit with its legendary slopes.

The mountain trio surrounds the pastoral beauty of a farm which, with its 120 acres, provides daily bread for the two Flett brothers and their families, determined to carry on a family tradition.

Some of the first-growth evergreens still stand guard in the midst of the lush meadows, and the busy cackle from the chicken house is the only sound in the stillness.

Procedure

Strachan Learns Patience

PORT ALBERNI — Opposition leader Robert Strachan finds it "exhilarating" to see Premier Bennett in a state of fury, he said during a Non-Political Talk on Politics to Port Alberni and District Chamber of Commerce Tuesday.

Mr. Strachan said that, when he first sat in the B.C. legislature, he was impatient with the procedure but had come to understand it is based on the tradition of maintaining the people's rights.

"It is a reminder to us we didn't always have these freedoms," he said.

EIGHT YEARS

He said the system would work most effectively if government and opposition changed places every eight years.

The work of the opposition was frustrating and tiring but never fruitless, said Mr. Strachan.

He said the duty of the opposition is to oppose, to criticize and to warn—"It is not our job to smooth the way for the government."

AS HIS GRANDFATHER John—who arrived in Victoria from the Orkney Islands in 1854, went back to Scotland, returned to Vancouver Island with his bride and finally found his farm in the valley some years later—Ernest Flett is a farmer by heart.

He and his brother Wallace carried on where their father Peter left off, with only one significant difference — they manage two enterprises on one farm.

Wallace is the dairyman with a herd of 30 Ayrshire and Ernest tends 1,200 laying hens. Both are faithful longtime members of the Cowichan Creamery Association, as was their father, one of the chapter members.

One of their uncles, John William, was an oddtimer on the North Cowichan council and for many years served as secretary of the agricultural society.

What was once a mixed farm now is a specialized operation and the only crop grown on the Flett spread is forage for the cows.

ERNEST RECALLS that at one time grain was one of the main products but he found specializing was the only answer. With some sentiment Ernest Flett recalls the golden days of poultry farming when his present flock guaranteed a good business.

Eggs in those days brought better prices and the feed bill was about half as much as it is today.

He said that, during the last war, England was one of the main customers and a dozen eggs brought as much as 65 cents. At the same time a ton of feed cost approximately $45.

TODAY THE egg price is down to 35 cents and the ton of feed climbed to about $81. Even the better quality of feed, which is superior as far as nutrition is concerned, and higher quality stock cannot equal the steep difference.

Recently, Ernest Flett was commended by the government poultry inspector for his fine birds. It is his policy to keep pace with the increasing demand for quality.

Sea Haven Given Legacy

PORT ALBERNI—A legacy of $500 and other substantial gifts have been received at Port Alberni Seamen's Haven, a home for hundreds of crew members of visiting freighters.

The legacy came from the estate of the late Mrs. Susie Stone, longtime resident of the city.

Two framed colored pictures of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip were presented by the Nanaimo IOOE chapter, while a stereophonic record player was installed by Matt Gungl. "These gifts are very much appreciated by the directors and management of the haven," a spokesman said.

Monday sailors from four ships gathered for a record party when the new record player provided music for dancing.

They thanked managers Mr. and Mrs. William Bell and business from the community.

Worried Says Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government is very concerned with the possibility of deterioration of the situation in Haiti where there is a large number of Canadian missionaries, Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday.

He said a cabinet meeting today received a report on the situation.

He recalled the Canadian government has called attention of Canadians on the island to the possible dangers.

Duvalier Stays In Haiti

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — President Francois Duvalier gathered a score of U.S. correspondents in his ornate white palace Wednesday and told them emphatically: "Haiti will continue under my administration." (See also Page 2.)

As followers of the 55-year-old strongman set up a din of sirens, horns and bugles outside, Duvalier appealed for better relations with the United States.

'CERTAIN MEN'
He spoke acidly of "shortcomings of certain men" in the United States "who should have directed their efforts toward understanding Haiti and its people."

The appearance of the grey-haired Duvalier surrounded by his cabinet ministers seemed intended to dispel reports that he was getting ready to flee in the climax of a crisis over his continued rule.

MARKED MEN
Duvalier's constitutional term of office expired Wednesday but he declared himself re-elected for six more years after a rigged election two years ago. His enemies have marked him for assassination.

(In New York, the Haitian consulate cancelled four reservations on a Pan American World Airways flight to Paris that were believed intended for Duvalier and his family. The reservations had been made by telephone Sunday night by an unknown caller, and he presumably was to have reached New York by way of Curacao, in the Dutch West Indies.)

DID THE NAME
Claiming Haiti is calm and peaceful, Duvalier accused the United States of "an ill-considered attempt to create panic" by its orders to U.S. dependents to get out of the country last week. Canada did the same, Duvalier said, foreigners of all nationalities will "continue to enjoy... all guarantees for their safety under the protection of the law."

Duvalier denied any intention of heading his country toward the Communist bloc. He also said he is not receiving aid from any country in the Communist bloc.

Crisis Meeting Set By Socred Chiefs

OTTAWA (CP) — The struggle within the ranks of the Social Credit party will be placed before a special national council meeting of the party, a reliable informant said Wednesday night.

A call for the special session has gone out from party leader Robert Thompson following the resignation of Dr. Guy Marcoux, MP for Quebec-Montmorency.

ISSUE OF SIX
Dr. Marcoux quit the party's Quebec wing last weekend and resigned as party whip in the Commons. He has said he considers the caucus of Social Credit MPs dealt too lightly with six MPs who signed a statement after the April 8 election promising support for a Liberal government.

The six men later repudiated the statement and Mr. Thompson has said three were disciplined by the caucus. Dr.

Marcoux said he quit the Quebec wing because three of the MPs still are executive officers of it.

Mr. Thompson has requested National President Martin Klein of Regina to call the national council into session in the third week of June. Under the organization's constitution 30 days notice of a special session are required.

PARTY SHOWING
Two main subjects are expected to be placed before the council which is made up of the 13-member executive plus one representative from each provincial organization affiliated with the national organization. The whole question of Dr. Marcoux' resignation is one subject to be discussed. The other is the problem of the party as a result of its showing in the April 8 election in which Social Credit strength in the Commons was cut to 23 members from 30.

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Secretary-General U Thant said Wednesday he hopes for a "complete military disengagement" of the United Nations force in the Congo by the end of the year. He called for a temporary financial plan that would keep troops there—and in the Middle East—at least that long.

Speaking to the General Assembly's 11-member budgetary committee, the secretary-general said:

"I sincerely hope that the search for a more permanent solution will not be relaxed, although it is open to debate, perhaps, whether the moment is ripe for any real breakthrough."

Halfway Reached Before Midnight

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Gordon Cooper completed his 13th orbit at 1:21 PDT today and started No. 14 apparently still sleeping after not being heard from for six hours. He was to be awakened from an eight-hour rest period while over Australia on the 15th orbit. He passed halfway in his 22-orbit flight at 11:15 p.m. PDT.

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP) — Astronaut Gordon Cooper shattered the U.S. record for cosmic travel Wednesday night, then calmly began an eight-hour rest period during which he hoped to sleep.

All earth-bound monitors were cautioned to remain silent while Cooper took his space siesta as he spun on and on in his marathon flight. If he overslept, an electronic alarm clock, triggered from the earth, was to wake him up.

The record period started during the ninth of Cooper's scheduled 22 orbits. It began over the southeast Pacific as Cooper's Faith 7 spacecraft was approaching the west coast of Chile.

Told to Go for 17

Five minutes later, heart beat and respiration signals received at a tracking post on Ascension Island in the South Atlantic indicated he had gone to sleep or was close to it.

Two orbits earlier, the seventh—which was a "go" or "no go" point in the astronautical log book—he was doing so well officials told him to try for at least 17 orbits.

Zippering along at nearly five miles a second more than 100 miles above the earth, Cooper broke the U.S. mark established by astronaut Walter Schirra, who did six orbits of the world last October.

Everything pointed to a remarkably successful flight. As he settled down for a night of rest, Cooper reported he was in excellent condition. Faith 7 was in equally good shape.

At the time, he had 80 per cent fuel remaining in the automatic capsule control system and 91 per cent in the manual system. The flight plan called for him to have at least 50 and 65 per cent, respectively, remaining in each tank for the

Russia Sends Its Best

LONDON (Reuters) — Moscow radio said in its home service Wednesday: "The Soviet people, the first explorers of outer space, wish today for the successful completion of this weightless experiment, and sincerely hope that its results will serve the development of peaceful cooperation between the Soviet Union and the U.S. in the study of the laws of the universe."

Tension Builds In Mid-Pacific

ABOARD THE USS KEARSARGE (UPI) — The Kearsarge is sweating it out. The prayers have been said, the preparations made and the plans scrutinized for the thousandth time today as this 17-year-old carrier moves slowly through the white-capped Pacific for her rendezvous with astronaut Gordon Cooper.

Each hour and each orbit brings Faith 7 closer to that predetermined spot southeast of Midway Island. There the one-ton spacecraft and the 40,000-ton carrier are due to meet—one now whipping through space at 17,500 miles an hour and the other idling through the seas at 10 knots.

On the surface it is "business as usual" aboard the Kearsarge except at the ship's stores, which report a fire sale in film and cameras as the just-paid crew loads up on photo equipment to record the historic event.

Today is no different from any other day aboard this ship except for the unmeasurable intangible called tension that has been steadily building up with each successful Cooper orbit.

Marines drill on the hangar deck, mechanics tinker with the helicopters and stored planes, the paint brushes are out and the routine duties are being performed that go on daily aboard a carrier.

For the next hours the tension will continue, building up until that final orbit when Faith 7 is due to come plummeting out of space and Task Force 130 takes on the job of finding Cooper and bringing him safely home.

Alabama Seeking Legal Showdown

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Alabama's segregationist governor said Wednesday he will file suit challenging President Kennedy's right to send federal troops into Birmingham to settle racial troubles.

"This military dictatorship must be nipped in the bud," said Governor George C. Wallace in a Montgomery press conference. He said the federal court suit was in preparation but would not say when or where it would be filed.

POSSIBLE USE
Kennedy has sent approximately 3,000 soldiers to two military bases in Alabama.

The legal showdown between Kennedy and Wallace shaped up while downtown Birmingham merchants expressed fears of an economic disaster for this industrial city of 340,000 because of a reported white boycott.

STAYING OUT
White shoppers obviously were staying out of downtown stores.

But Negroes returned to stores in increasing numbers and an integration leader indicated their long-standing boycott, protesting segregation, was ending as the result of a desegregation agreement with businessmen.

Alabama's Supreme Court ruled that integration leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and 10 other Negro ministers could remain free pending review of their appeal of court contempt convictions. They were sentenced in circuit court here April 26 for defying an injunction against demonstrations.

'Barbaric'

Poison Pens Busy In Canada

TORONTO (CP) — An organizer for a group raising funds for U.S. Negro integration leader Martin Luther King said Wednesday night the group has received a number of hate letters and telephone calls.

Milton Cadaby, a lawyer and chairman of the social action committee of Holy Blossom Temple, said a handful of the 400 letters received by the fund since it was started Saturday were of the poison pen variety.

'Pretty Casual Up There'

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP) — A log of astronaut Gordon Cooper's space flight:

3:50 a.m. EDT — Cooper awakened to begin the astronaut's big day.

6:33 a.m. — The astronaut climbed feet first into his Faith 7 spacecraft.

9:04 a.m. — Liftoff. Cooper was on his way toward space.

ORBIT 1

9:08 a.m. — Project Mercury officials announced the spacecraft had achieved orbit.

9:12 a.m. — "Great sport, isn't it?" said Walter Schirra on the ground. "Sure is," Cooper replied.

9:18 a.m. — Over the Canary Islands, a TV camera in the capsule transmitted first pictures of Cooper to the ground.

10:31 a.m. — Cooper told astronaut Gus Grissom at Guaymas, Mexico, the flight was "quite a thrill." He got go-ahead for the next six orbits.

ORBIT 2

10:37 a.m. — Cooper checked readings quickly with Alan Shepard on the ground at Canaveral. "You son-of-a-gun," Shepard said. "We don't have

ORBIT 3

12:29 p.m. — Approaching Africa, Cooper released from his craft a 3.15-inch sphere with two brilliant flashing lights.
